To Diane
To a very beautiful Sr.
Blonde. Remember me as one of your good friends.
I hope the Sr class has done enough to go down in history as a wild class. No doubt it has.
To a real sweet, cute, and wonderful friend. I wish I could have gotten to know you better.

Diane,
Best of luck in the

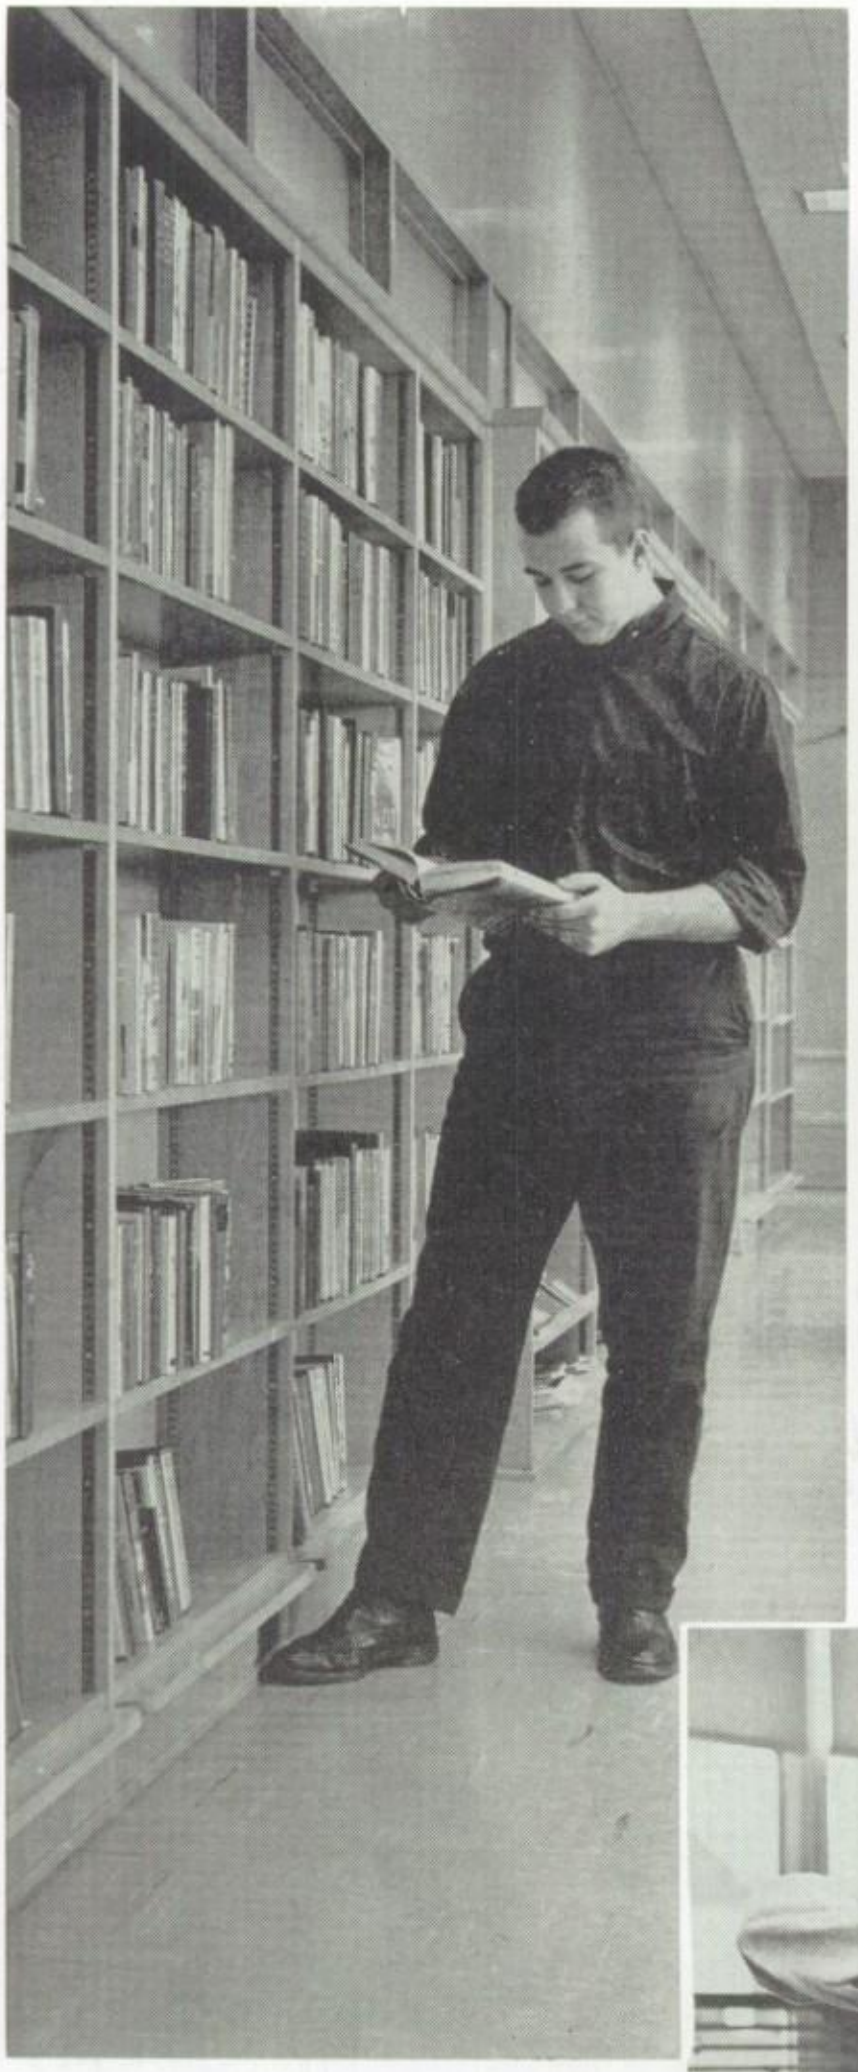
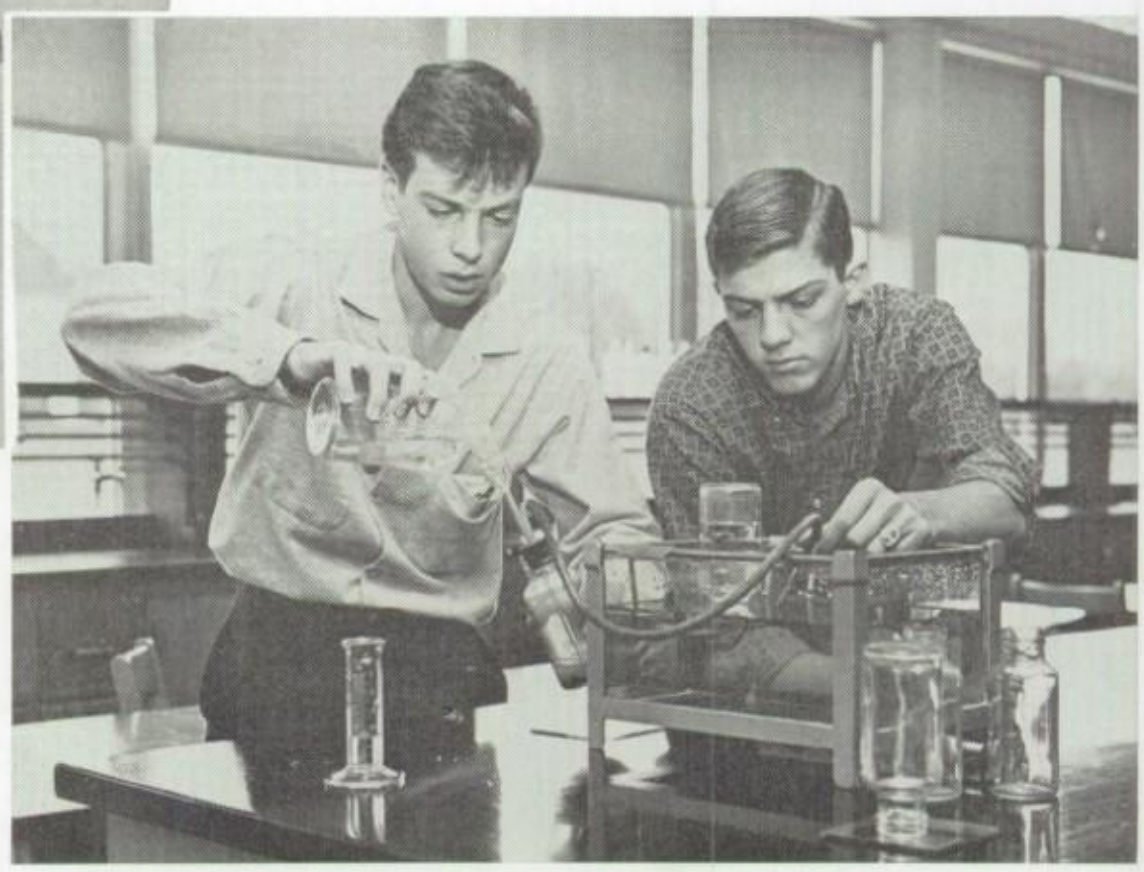
This we believe —

To believe—to define our beliefs and uphold them—is essential in preserving our way of life. Without beliefs we have nothing to stand for or work toward. Today, more than ever before, every phase of American life is being subjected to constant criticism, criticism which often focuses on our system of education. Not wishing to produce unquestioning servants of the state, we believe that each of us must have the opportunity to perfect our talents. Through education, the foundation of democracy, we learn to think clearly, evaluate the ideas of others, and establish our own beliefs.

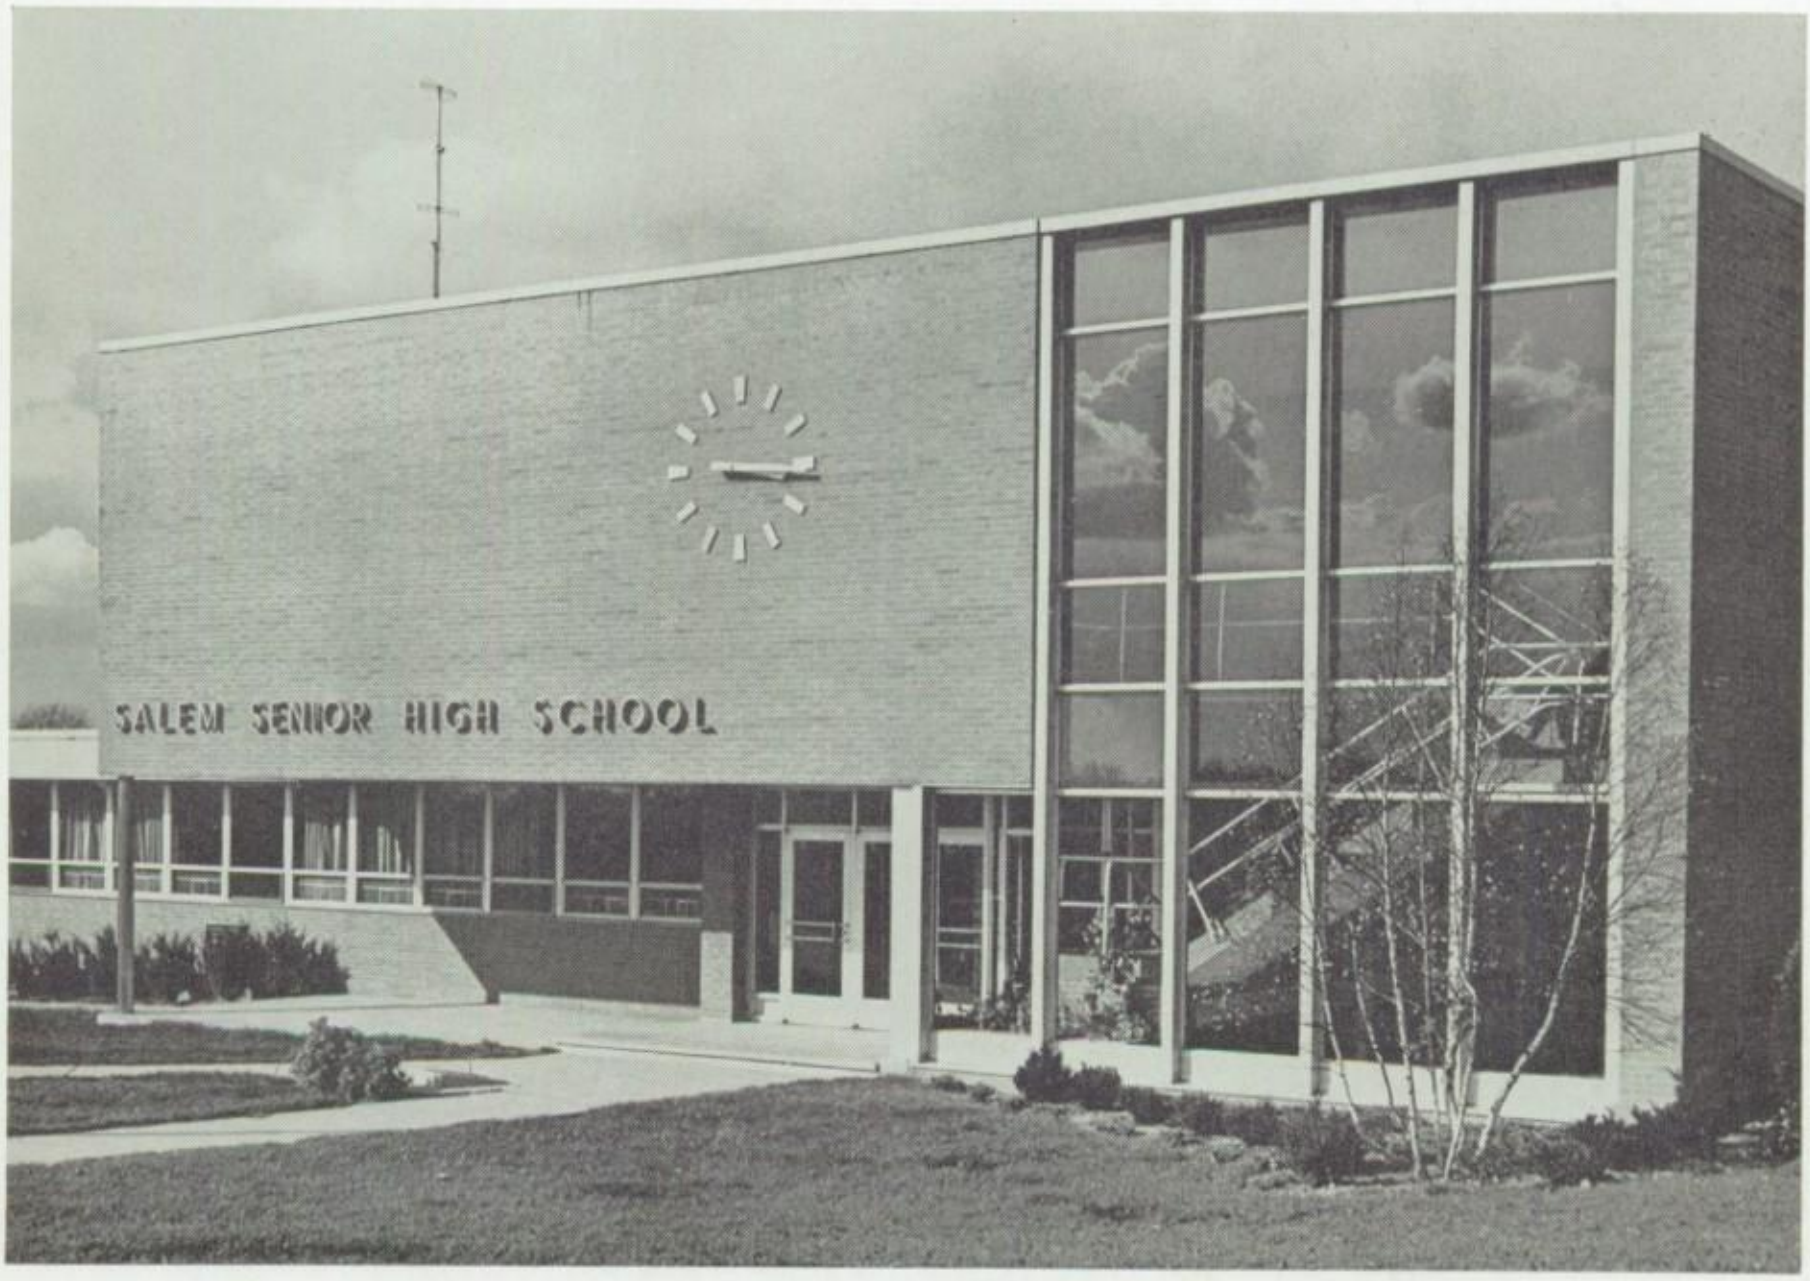


BEFORE man can truly believe in anything, he should acquire a basic knowledge, and what better source of knowledge is there than the pages of a book.

TAKING EXTREME caution with potent hydrochloric acid, Greg Gross adds the solution as Bob Hasson holds the rubber tubing in place during an after-school experiment.



education is fundamental to our democratic society



A LITTLE ADVICE from student teacher Richard McKenzie comes in handy as Rick Sidinger tries to remove a flaw with sandpaper. Development of creativity and application of technological theories are correlated in wood classes.

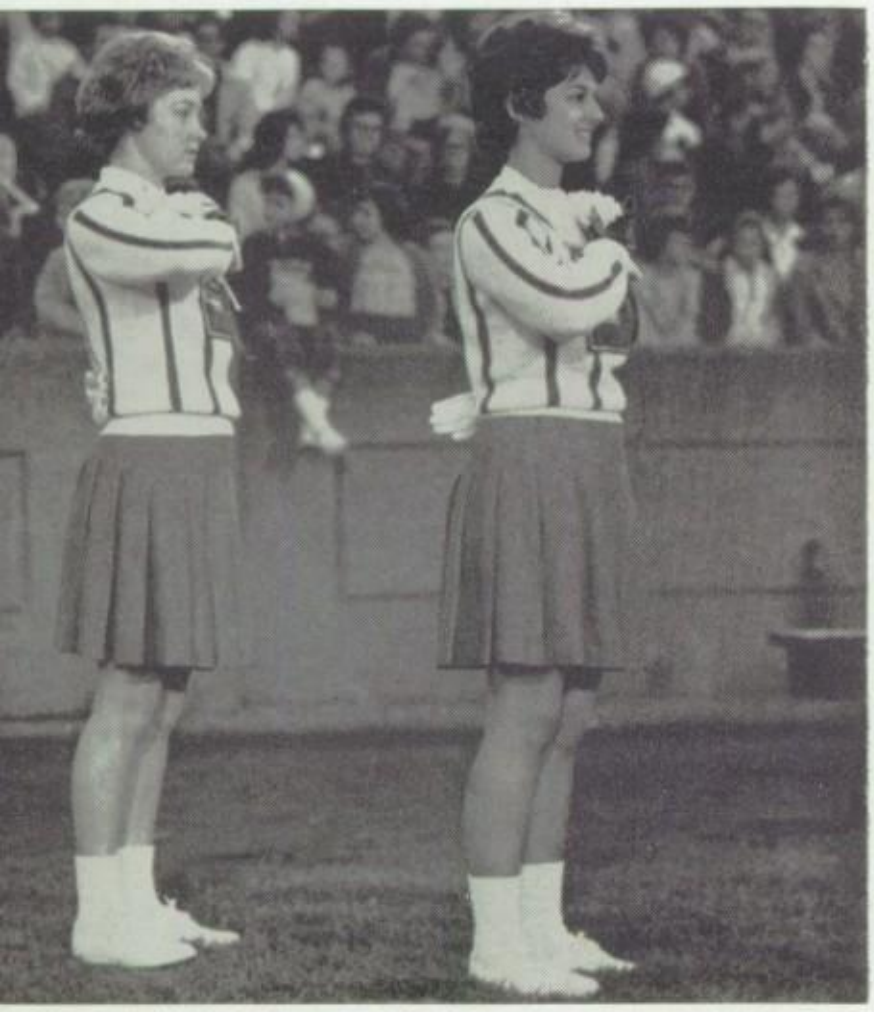
Truth

A CHURCH framed by a glass window — such a common sight to each of us that we rarely stop to think of the beauty that it renders or the meaning which it holds.



STANDING at attention prior to the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" are SHS's varsity cheerleaders, who match the action on the field with pep and color.

THANKFUL that the hectic days of name-gathering are behind him, Student Council aspirant Bob Moore returns a petition to election committee chairman Jim Ward and prepares for an even more hectic week of campaigning.

preserves freedoms which have become our heritage

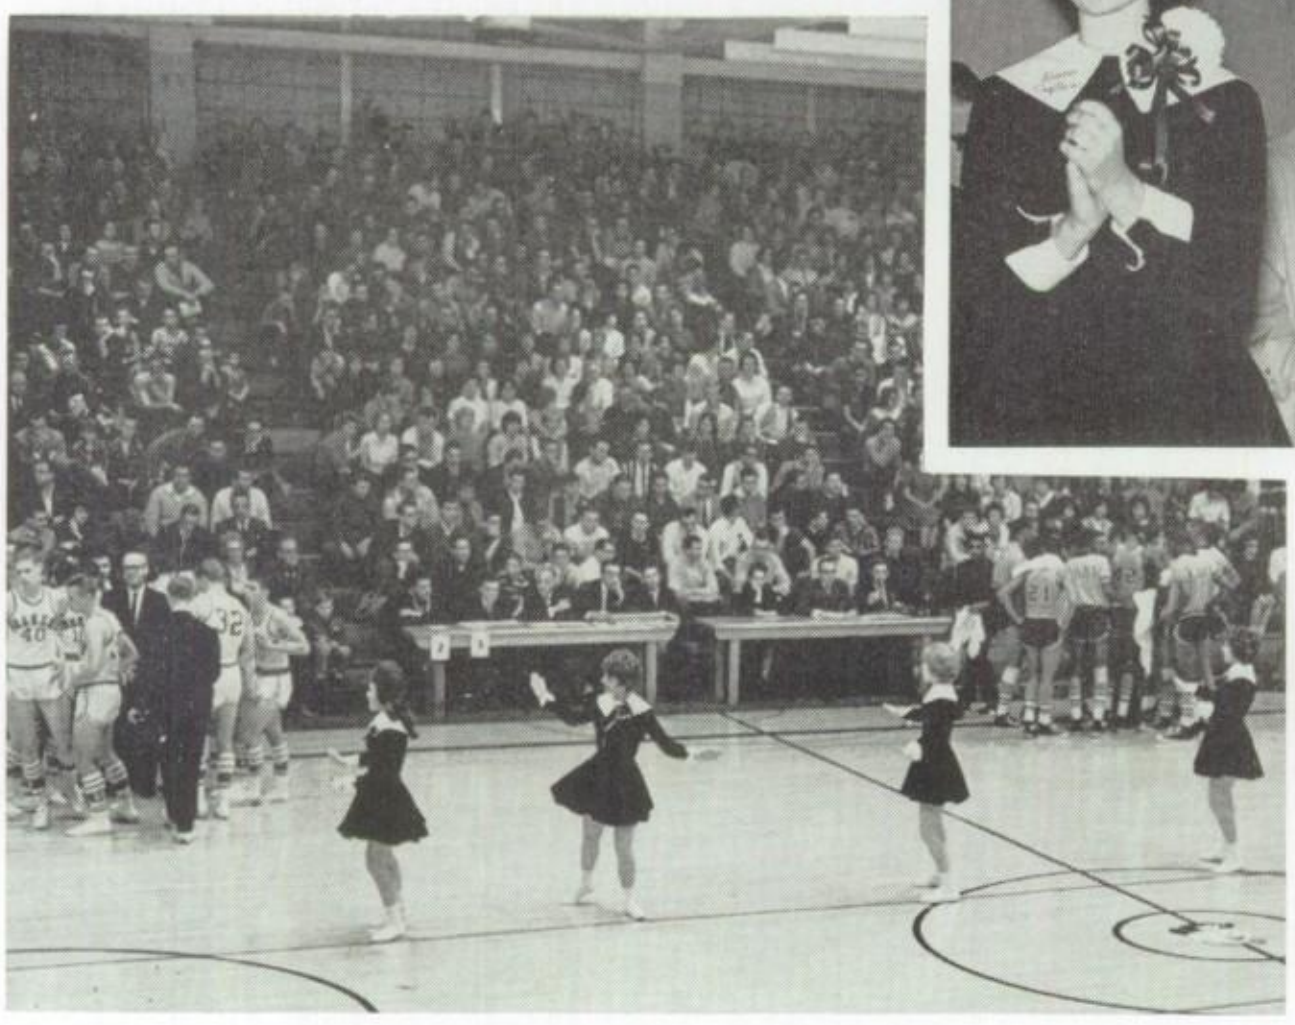
We believe in democracy, a democracy which is more than a form of government. It is a way of life, an elusive spirit. Democracy is the cheerleader solemnly standing at attention during the national anthem. It is the aspiring Student Council candidate turning in his petition and anxiously awaiting the forthcoming elections. The conscience of democracy is a free press which reports events as they actually happen and voices an uncensored opinion on every issue. It is an ideal, an ideal founded upon respect of the individual, sacredness of human life, and abiding faith in God.

IT'S PASTE-UP day in the Quaker office as editors Patty Price, Bonnie Youtz, and Mary Grisez rush to get their dummies back to the printer. After a brief sigh of relief the girls will begin the two-week cycle all over again.

SEEKING some information on higher education, Diane Mundy and Bill Beery discuss the KSU extension courses with Mrs. Callahan, secretary of the Kent branch in Salem.

Scholarship, leadership, talent, skill are

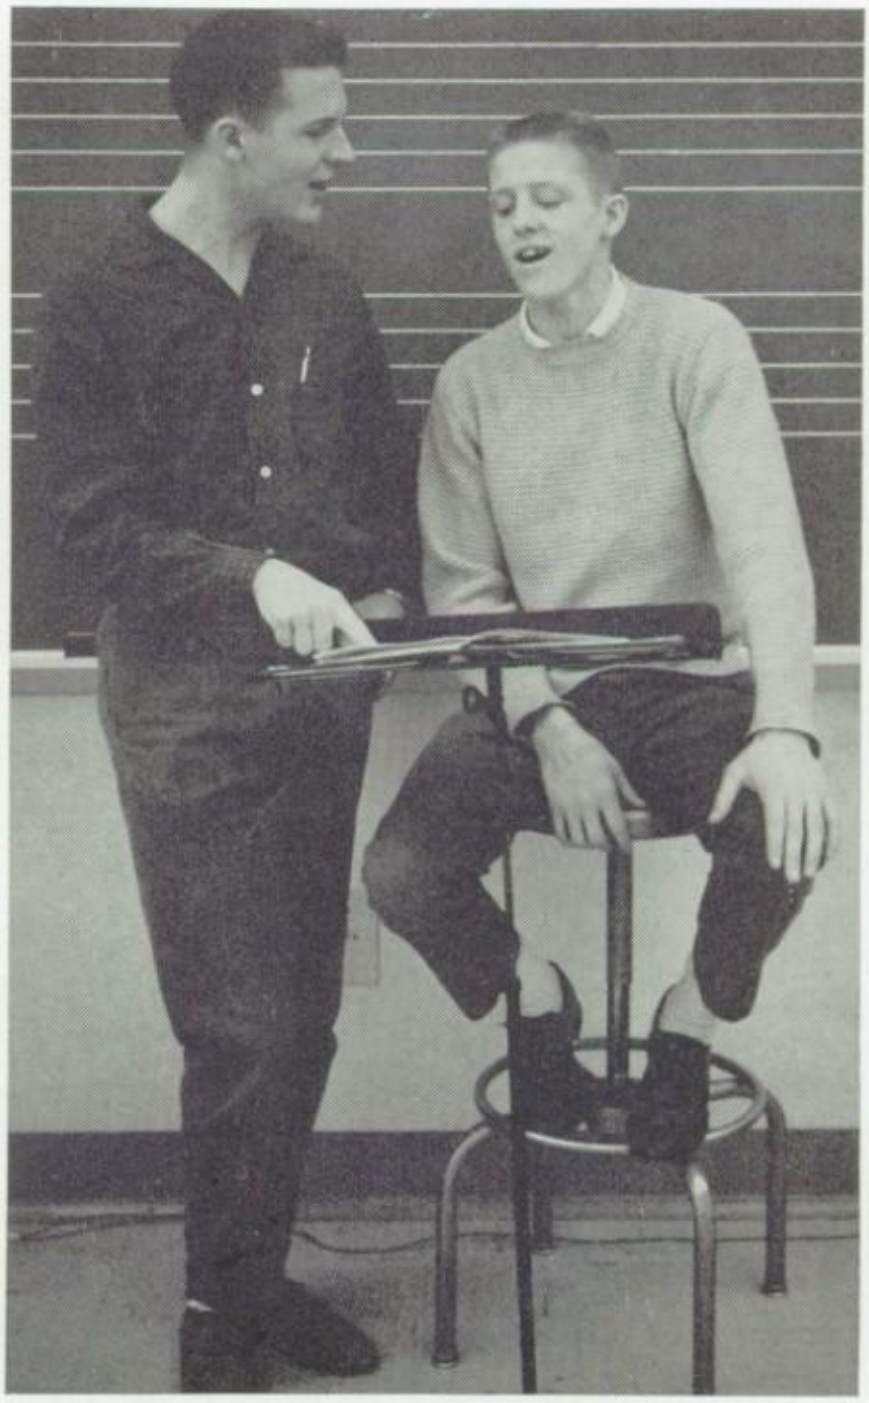
NOBODY OUTDOES the Quakers when it comes to spirit and enthusiasm, for we have filled the gym to capacity every game, and whatever the outcome, we give our full support.



AFTER a moment of meditation a pensive chess enthusiast launches an attack with her knight in an attempt to cope with the strategy of an Indonesian friend.

qualities that we admire

In a school such as ours, there are many ideals which influence our daily life, ideals which we seldom think about, but unconsciously advocate. The honor roll student and the award winner personify our belief in the pursuit of excellence. In the same manner our attitudes of good sportsmanship, team spirit, and fair competition are manifested at sports events. Also basic to us is our belief in accepting friends for what they are and not judging them by the superficial standards of the narrow-minded. Though seldom voiced, these are the principles which formulate our beliefs.



POLISHING UP on their do re mi's are Clyde Miller and Gary Hasson, who were selected to be charter members of the School Chorus of America.

This we believe . . .

In our high school we see teens in transition as we broaden our horizons through association with others. Adjusting to life, we grow in knowledge and understanding of human personalities. As sophomores awed by its spaciousness and luster, we roam the halls of SHS with map and handbook in hand. We also display an effervescent enthusiam mixed with self-consciousness and protective class pride. Growing in character as juniors, we acquire a stronger sense of values and begin to look to the future with purpose. Beginning to realize the opportunities which lie before us, we set out to seize them. As seniors we are swept by a feeling of nostalgia. In retrospect we feel we have achieved so little. We stand on the brink of adulthood, longing to step forward, yet reluctant to do so. It is now that we come to realize our own potential and its significance in this dynamic era.

Carefree and cocky throughout our early years,

SENIOR CLASS officers Ray Rogers, vice-president; Darryl Everett, president; and Deidra Coy, secretary-treasurer, ponder how to distribute some remaining tins of nuts. Seniors sold over 1200 cans to net a higher income than any class preceding them.

TERM-PAPER TIME rolls around every year, and seniors Jim Longsworth, Patty Jo Eddy, and Bob Whitcomb are off to a good start as they delve deeply into their chosen topics for research work.

Seniors at last . . . this is it . . . that special year . . . new confidence and esteem . . . leadership . . . they say it's wonderful . . . and it is . . . senior open houses . . . swelling with class pride . . . Crumbles, Crumbles, Crumbles . . . selling tons of tins . . . mastering physics . . . or trying to . . . cram for a health test . . . plod through Beowulf and Macbeth . . . heated class debates in P. This we believe . . .

Educated citizens are the safeguard of democracy

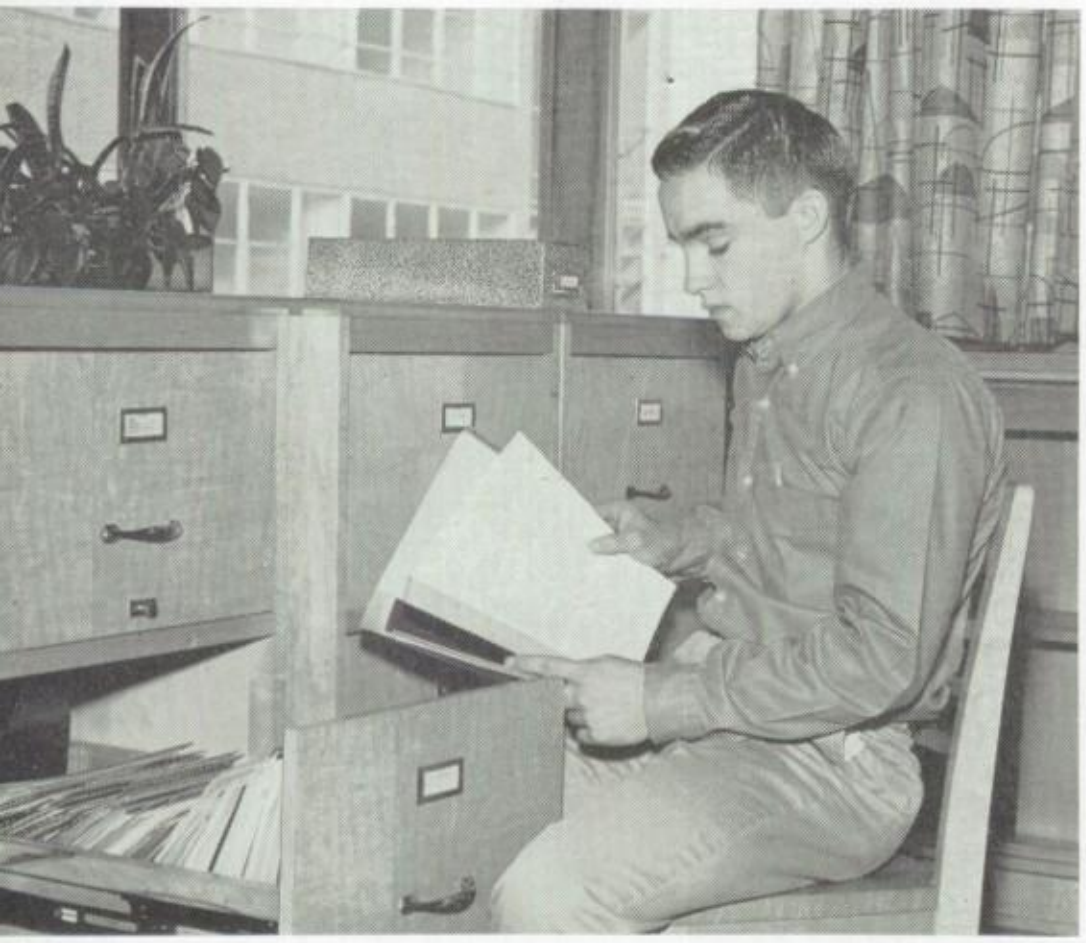
Education is a fundamental and yet complicated process. It is more than just completing our daily assignments and cramming for tomorrow's test. Education is much more than the cut-and-dried facts waiting to be memorized. Education is the student learning to understand the abstract nature of liberty and freedom. It is also the concrete process of mastering verb conjugations, chemistry formulas, and history dates. Education is the practicality of baking pies and using machinery. Students solving math problems and constructing geometry models apply the principles which they have learned. Education is seeing the results of your own experimentation in biology class. It is communicating thoughts and understanding cultures. It is the realization and subsequent appreciation of beauty. Education is the application of the knowledge we have attained and the continued striving for wisdom.

Paperback book store, additional titles,

WHETHER SEEKING a place for uninterrupted concentration or the relaxation of skimming through a magazine, students flock daily to SHS's modern library, which can fulfill almost any reference need a student might have.



SCANNING material in the college and career corner, senior Dick Stark discovers a folder which arouses his interest. Students will find the files are well-supplied with information on vocational guidance and scholarship opportunities.

Wishing to make use of its vast sources of knowledge, SHSers have consistently and enthusiastically congregated in the spacious library.

The year's most prominent addition to the growing library was the paperback book store, which had hundreds of books of all types for sale to students. Over 500 hardbound books have also been purchased since fall by librarian Mrs. Helen Heim.

In addition to many types of reference books, the enlarged academic section also has a college and career corner, a file consisting largely of college catalogs and vocational guidance material.

Scores of magazines and novels provide recreational reading for the leisure-seeking student.

new pamphlets enlarge modern library

Punching library cards, tending the new paperback book store, issuing overdue notices, and alphabetizing file cards keep student library assistants hopping throughout the day. These tasks, plus aiding students to locate needed materials, help the assistants themselves to learn more about the library and its uses.

Aside from these regular duties, they also plan displays for the library showcase and arrange material on the bulletin boards. Many after-school hours are spent filing periodicals, repairing books, and giving shelves a thorough dusting.

The assistants are selected by librarian Mrs. Helen Heim for their interest and dependability.

BROWSING THROUGH some popular novels, Frank Barrett, Rich Parlontieri, and George Johnston patronize the new paperback book store. Its addition was an immediate success; students bought over 300 books during the first week alone.

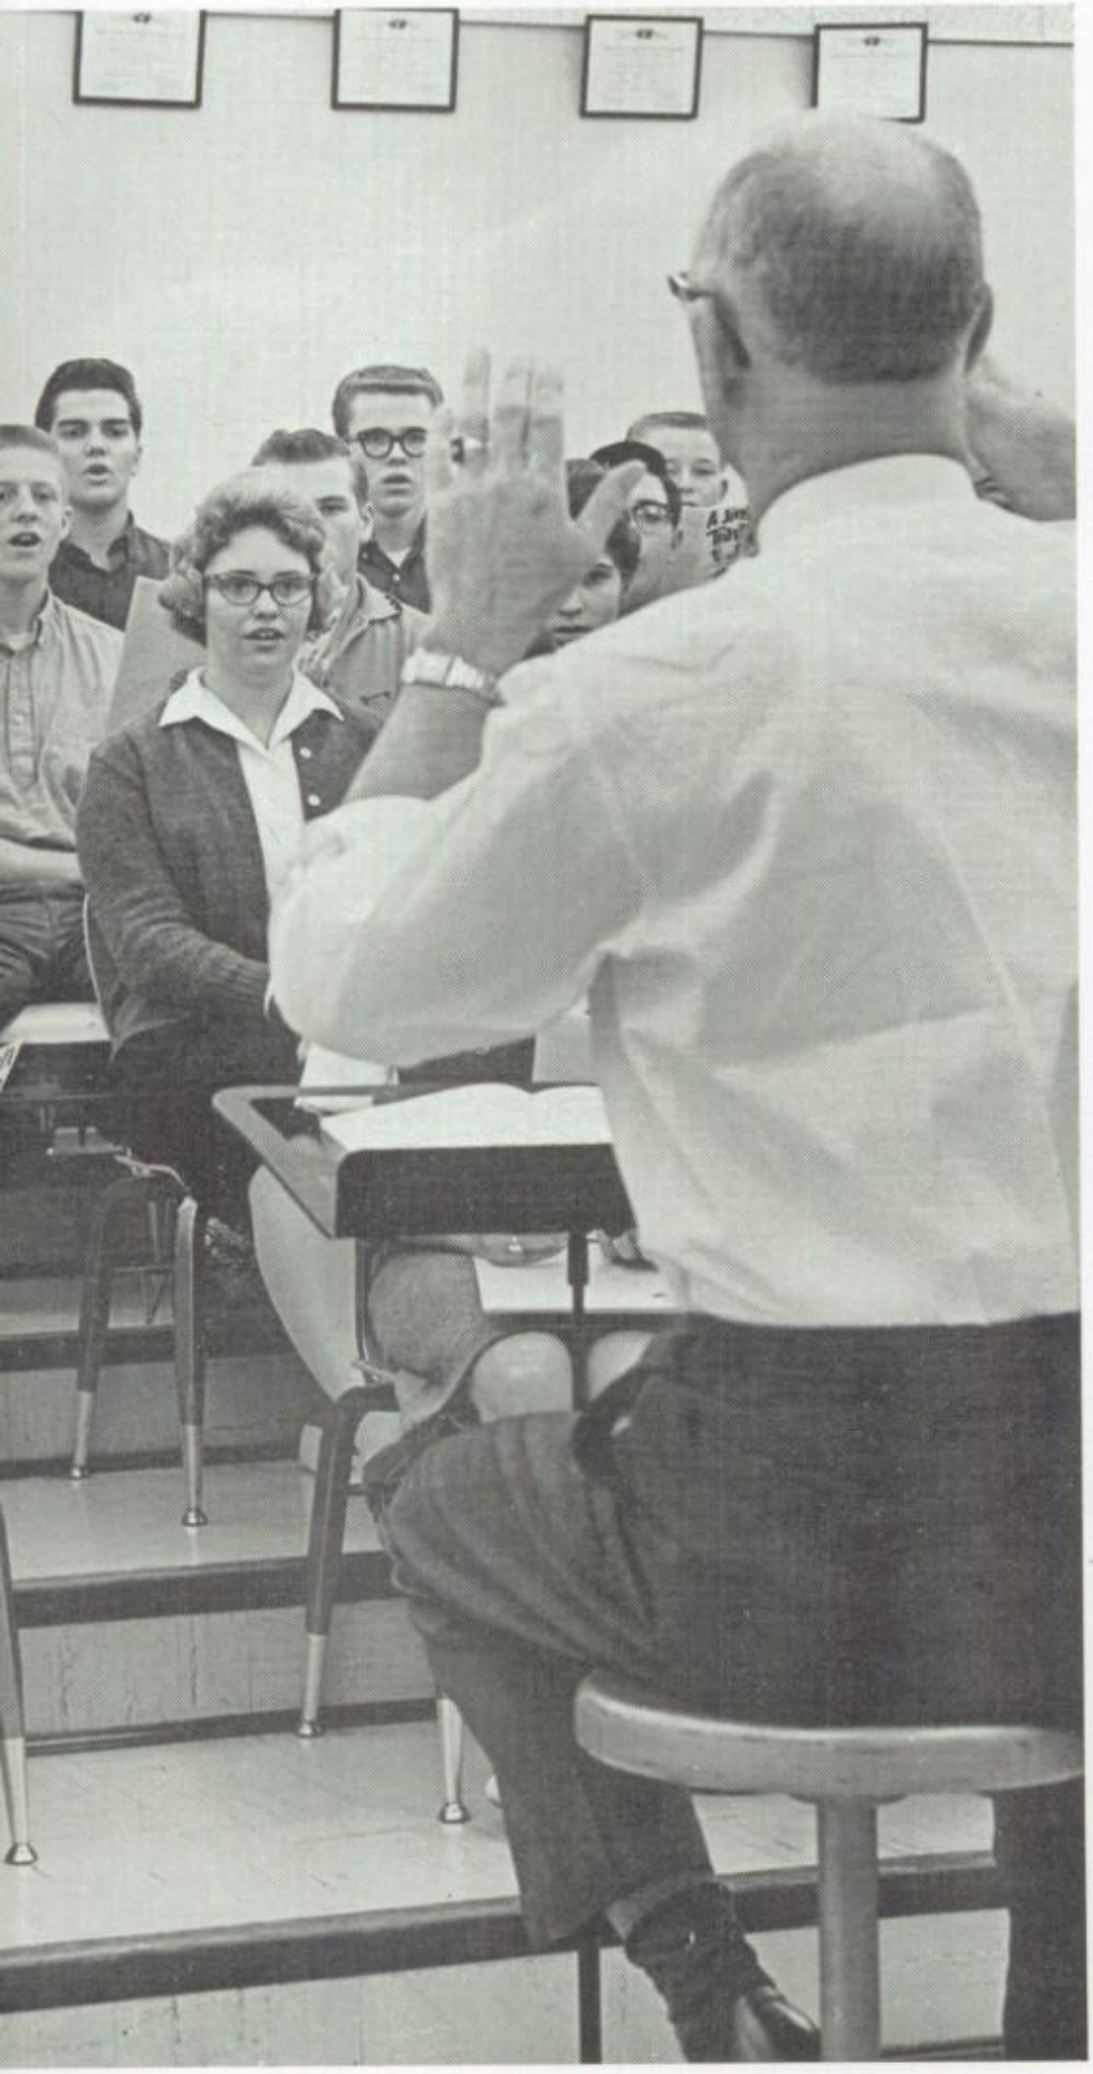
Prospective Picassos, Szells apply talents

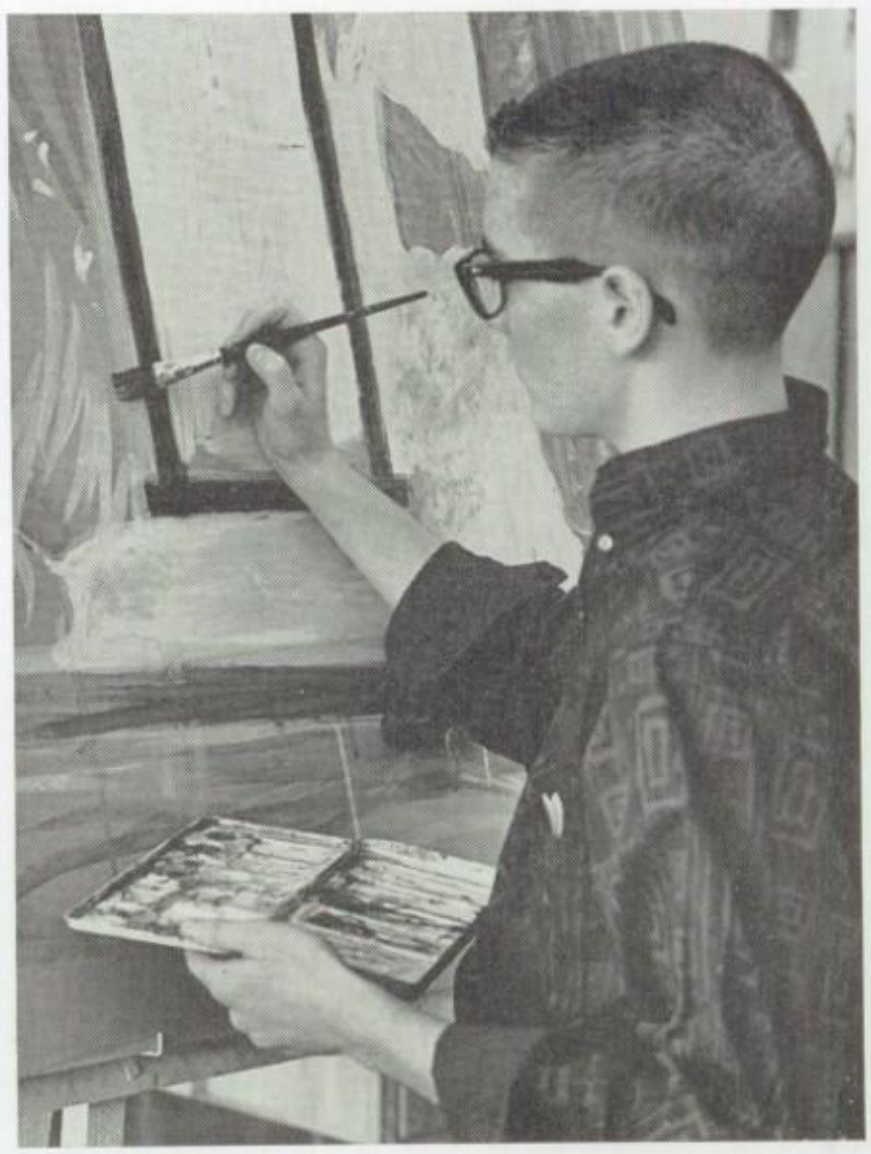
ALL EYES FOCUS on the easy guiding gestures of choral director Edwin Miller as he drills his Robed Choristers through a series of scales during one of their daily class rehearsals in the soundproof music wing of Salem Senior High.



Fine arts in many forms occupied innumerable classroom periods and after-school hours of many Salem students as they took advantage of the opportunity to escape into their own world of creativity and self-expression.

Making the most of the three-year art program in SHS, prospective Picassos struggled tirelessly over a drawing board or before an easel as they developed their artistic craftsmanship and sensitivity. Experiments with ceramics also offered a challenging novelty for the artists this year.

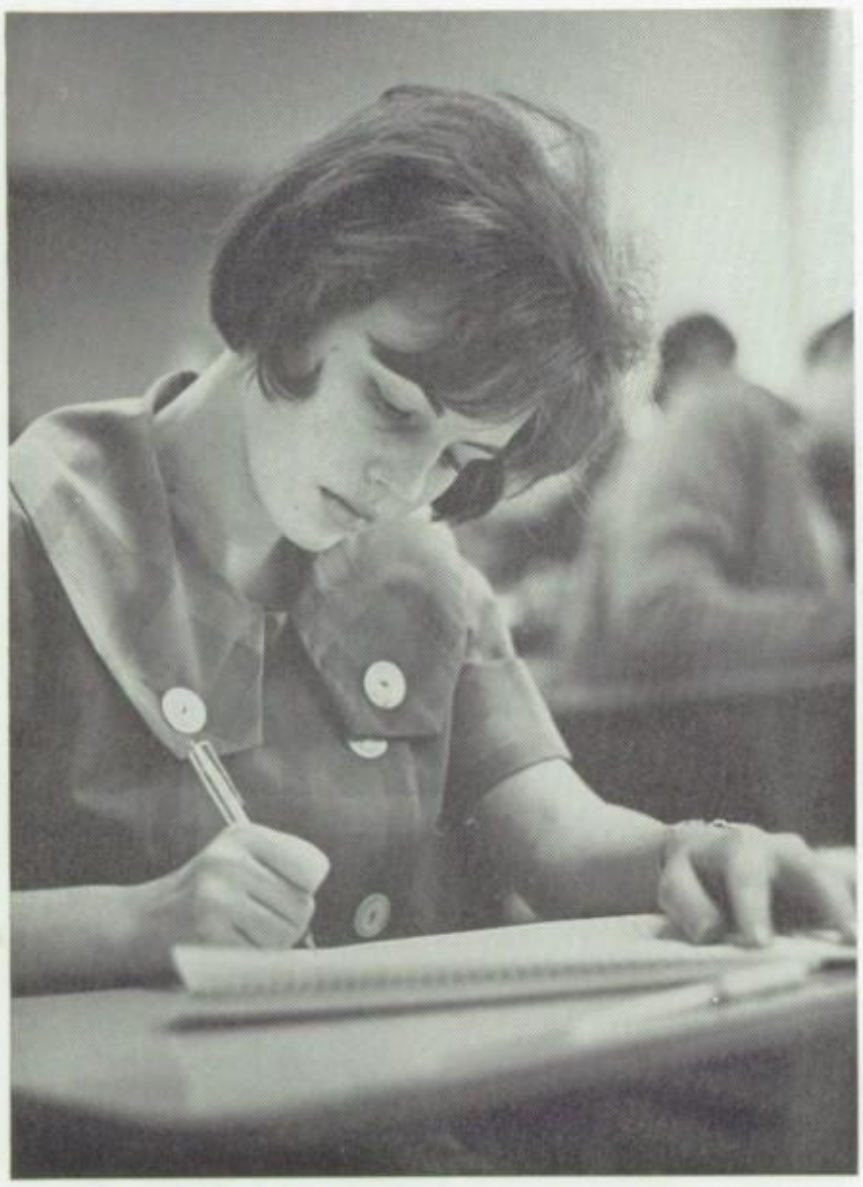
The band and three choruses enabled students to employ their musical talents through group participation. Tedious hours of practice preceded the fine performances given by the young musicians of SHS, some of whom won honors in state competition.



A SPLATTERED PAINT box and a worn brush don't seem to hinder soph Joel Fisher as he attempts a tempera painting on a large canvas. Another painting of this type earned Joel a prize at the Area Artist's Show at Butler Art Institute.

EXPLAINING the differences between cumulative and coordinate adjectives, Miss Betty Ulicny presents her student with some helpful hints. Fine points of grammar are reviewed carefully in English IV.

English curriculum undergoes alteration



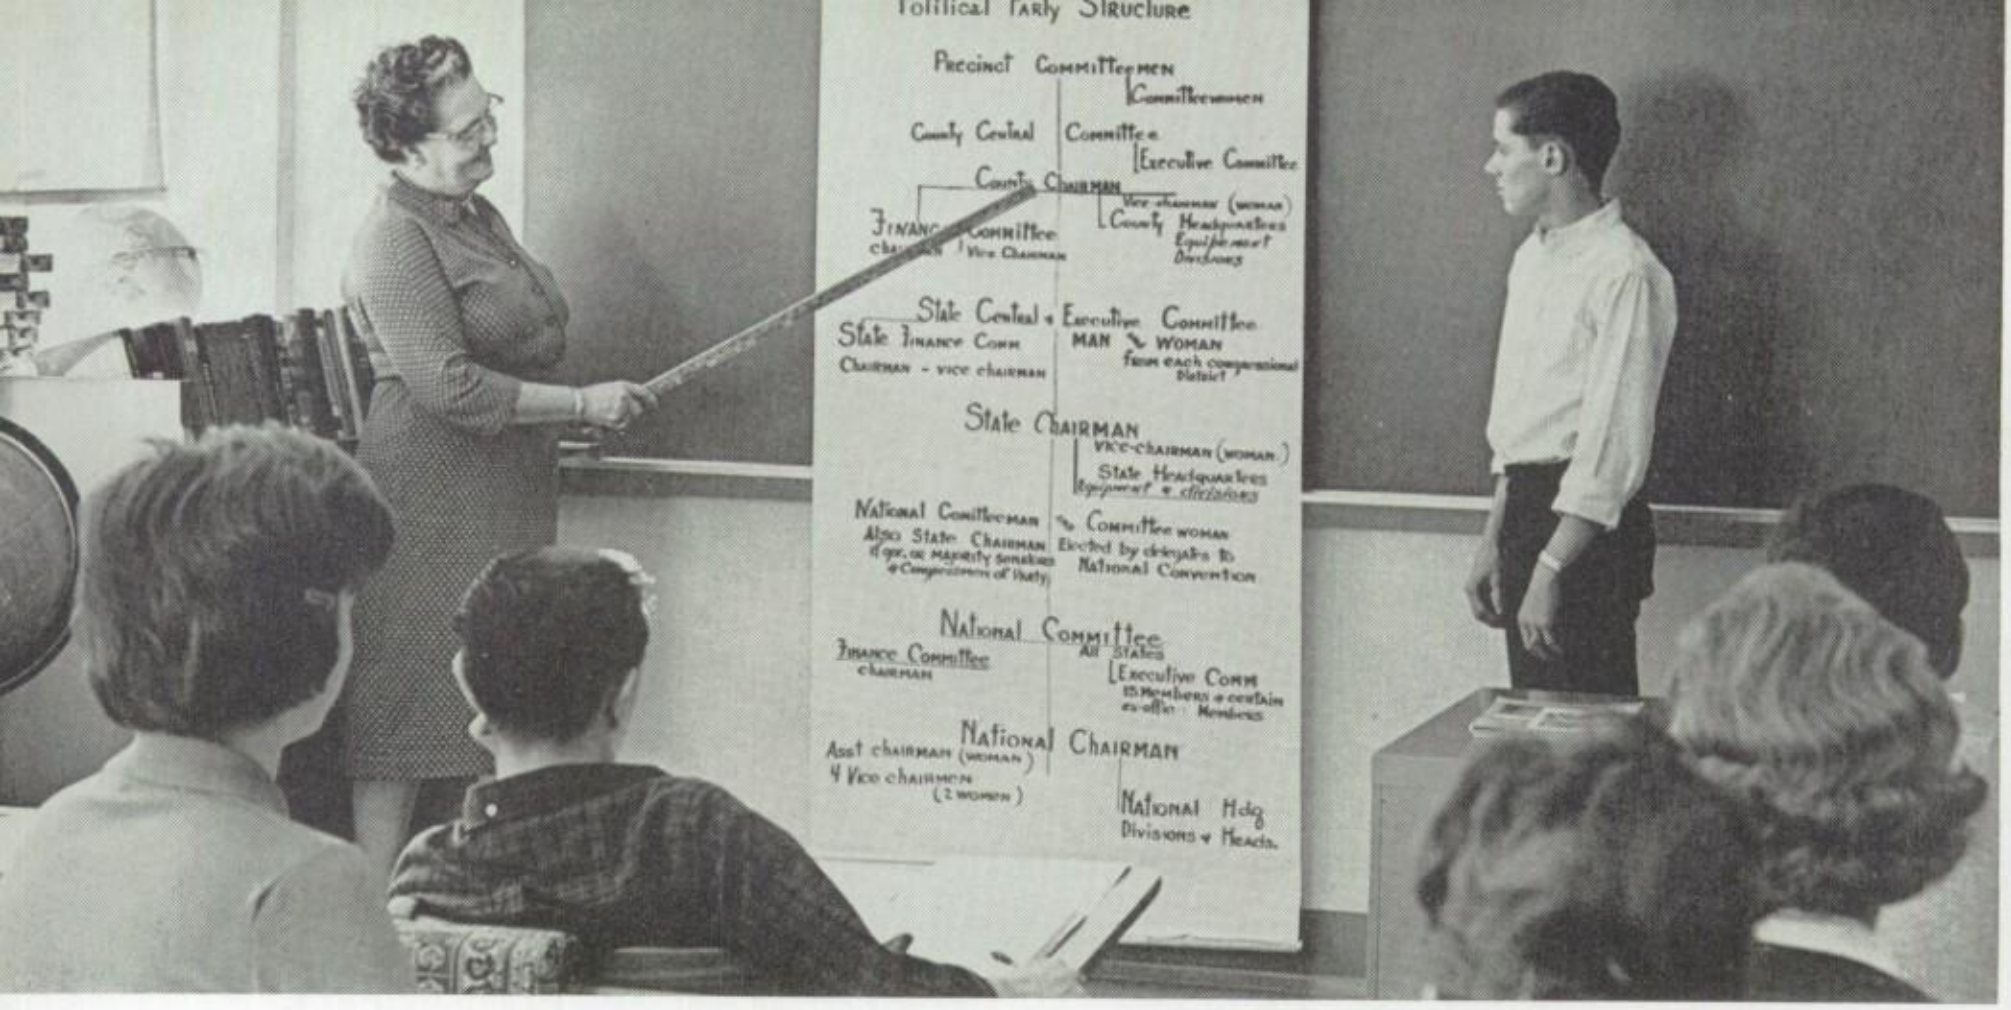
To enable students to take courses suited to their own specific needs, the English department underwent several changes during the past year.

College-bound seniors electing to take English IV were introduced into a comprehensive full-year course, which had consisted previously of two separate one-semester courses. Heavily emphasized composition and a survey study of English literature constituted the course.

Supplementing English IV were two one-semester courses which were inaugurated this year for fourth-year students. Practical English stresses the mastery of communicative skills, while Contemporary Literature gives students the opportunity to examine the works of modern authors.

English II and III develop fundamental English usage skills and attempt to instill an appreciation of literature in various forms with traditional and modern selections by established authors.

WITH THOUGHTS OF a possible Brooks Award dancing in her head, junior Dianne Everhart prepares a required theme during an English class. Each year more and more emphasis is being put upon creative and expository writing.



EXPLAINING the structure of America's political party system, state central committeewoman Mrs. Letha Astry replies to a question by Tom Griffiths as an attentive Problems of Democracy class looks on. We as Americans must fully understand democracy before we can consider ourselves prepared to defend it against the threatening force of communism.

Social studies, languages give international PERSONALITIES and how to improve them — that's the topic of this informal conversation. Such discussions are frequent in psychology, which presents the problems of handling the emotions and frustrations of everyday living.

WHENEVER "trace the development of . . ." appears on the board, SHSers are in for a history quiz such as the one given here by student teacher Miss Elizabeth Rila. Seven student teachers from area colleges received training at SHS.

ADMIRING the works of students of previous years, Latin II students Donna Schnorrenberg, Dave Karmazin, and Chuck Joseph hope to receive some inspiration for their own impending projects.

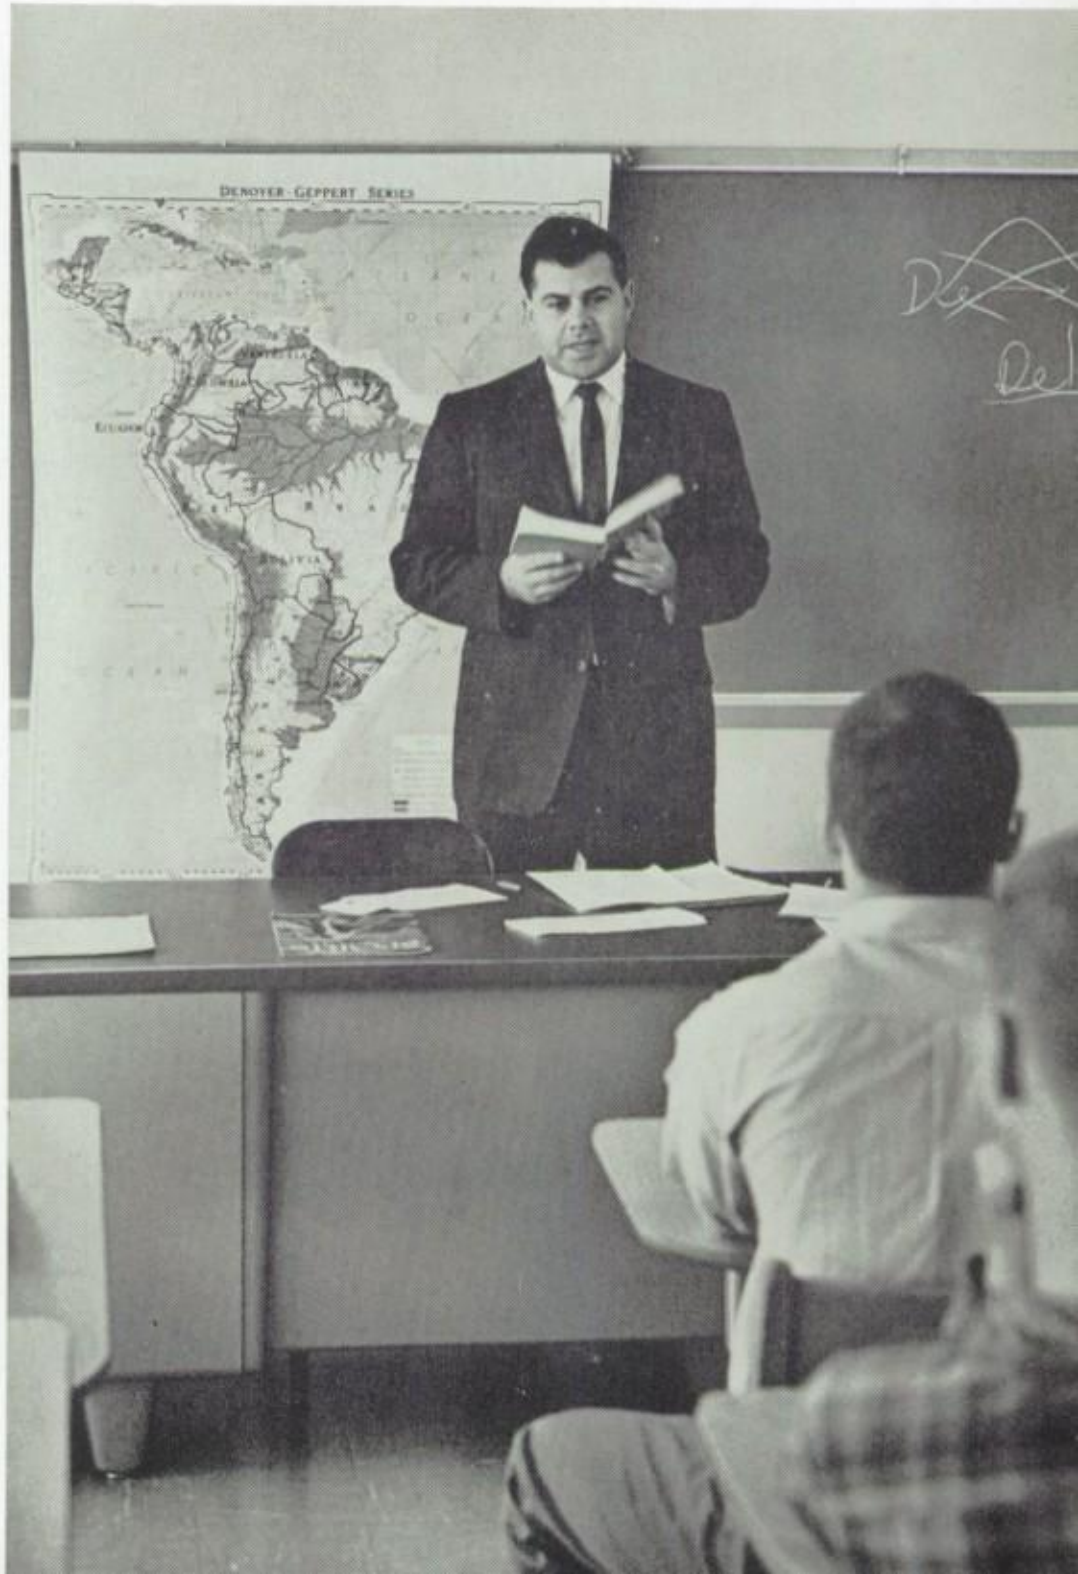
PUTTING in a few well-chosen words of Espanol, Mr. Anthony Monteleone discusses one of the various Spanish novels read by third-year students.

flavor to classrooms

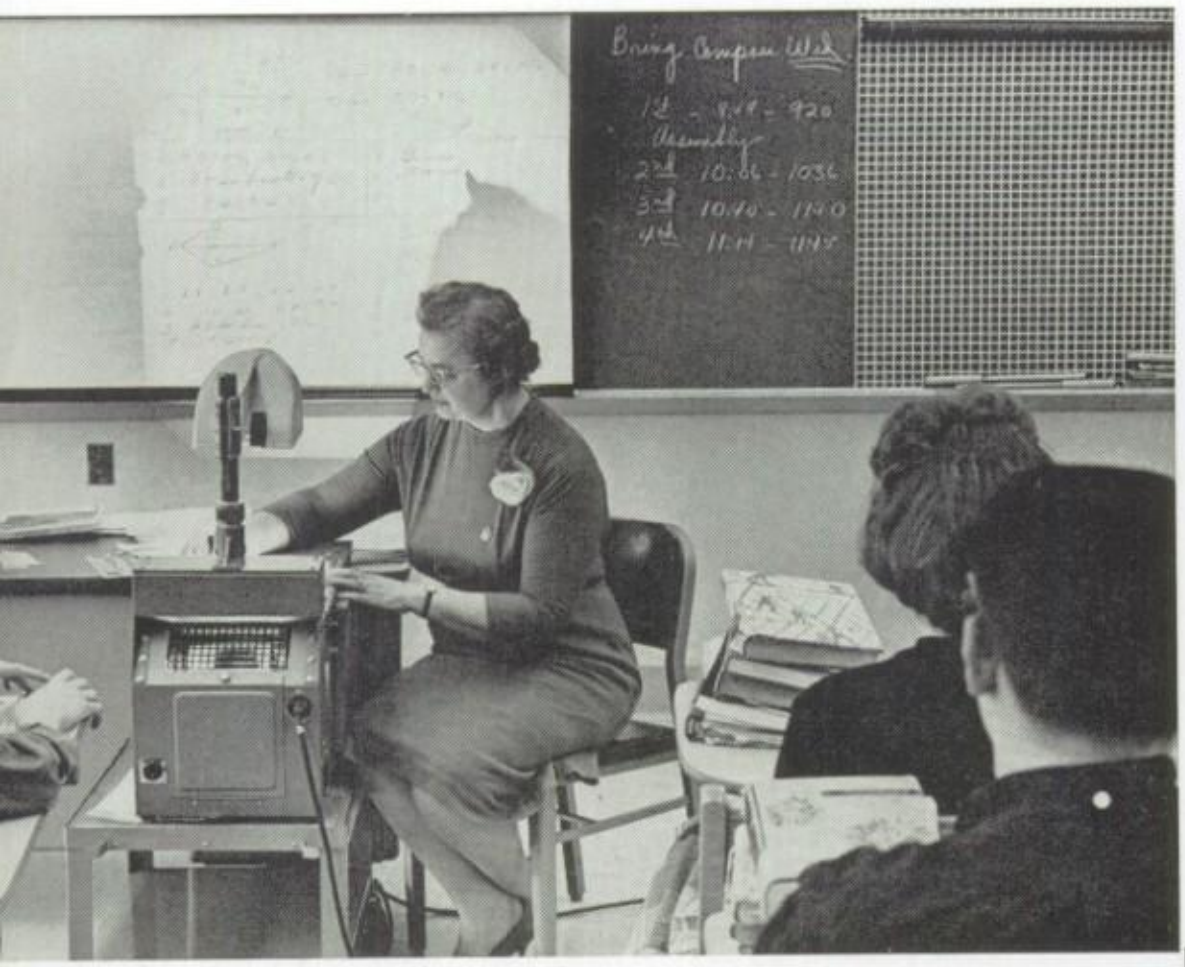
A growing number of SHSers are keeping pace with today's world through languages. Gradually progressing from fundamentals to intricacies of their respective languages, French, German, and Spanish students strive to acquire the fluency which compensates for the many hours spent dictating into the tape recorder or translating lengthy passages. Advanced students explore the various cultures and backgrounds relating to these languages. Not to be excluded is the Latin student, who studies commentaries on Caesar's Gallic War.

Through the social studies program, students can also keep in stride with the changing world. Problems of Democracy, a required course for seniors as of this year, presents an outline of America's democratic heritage and the resulting problems. World history offers a chronological sketch of man's progression through the ages, while United States history focuses on the story of our own country. Geography, psychology, and economics complete the curriculum.

Under these two programs the students of today can become informed citizens of tomorrow.



Science, math



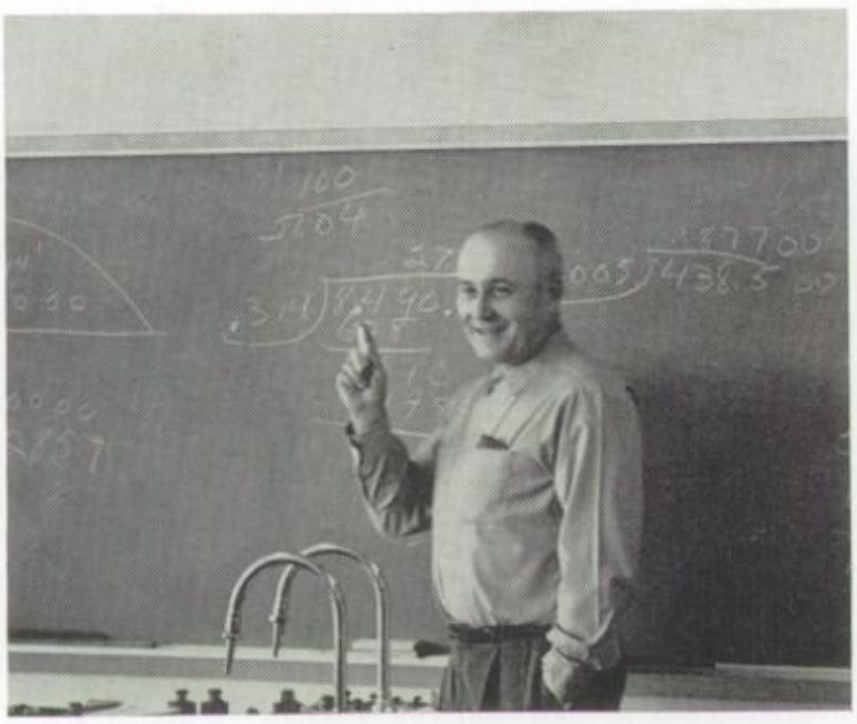
FORMAL PROOFS are projected onto the board by means of a Vu-Graph, which has become Mrs. Loria's indispensable helper. Convenient and time-saving, this opaque projector eliminates tedious board work.

Mathematics, the study of quantity and relation through the use of numbers and symbols, is presenting an increasing challenge to students of SHS.

As the student comes in contact with algebra, plane and solid geometry, trigonometry, and review math (a survey course for seniors which was added to the curriculum last fall), he learns not only to use this convenient tool of science, but also to think logically and work accurately.

With calculus Temacs, analog computers, and Brainiacs, the student is given the additional opportunity of working with modern mathematical devices and progressing at his own rate.

"THE SOLUTION LIES in the plane angle," asserts Miss Martha McCready as she explains the various properties of a dihedral angle to solid geometry student Bob Eagleton with the aid of a diagram.



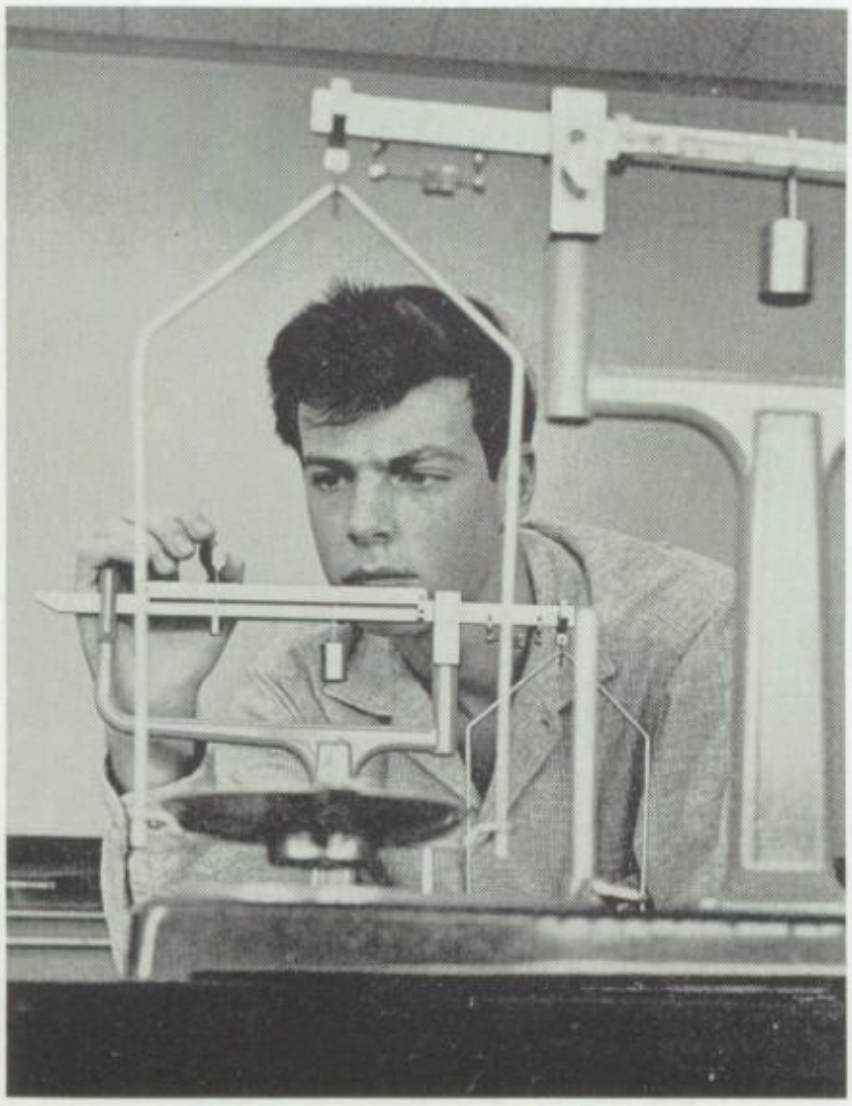
"WOULD YOU SAY, MR. . . ." questions physics teacher Herb Jones of a wary student. Such Jones-type inquiries require complete consideration of all sides of the question.

courses preview tomorrow's world

With the aid of new equipment, students of biology, chemistry, physics, and health peered further into tomorrow's world using today's knowledge. Increased accuracy and precision were made possible for the junior chemists with the purchase of four new balances, while a new radioactivity demonstrator has fascinated inquisitive chemistry and physics students alike.

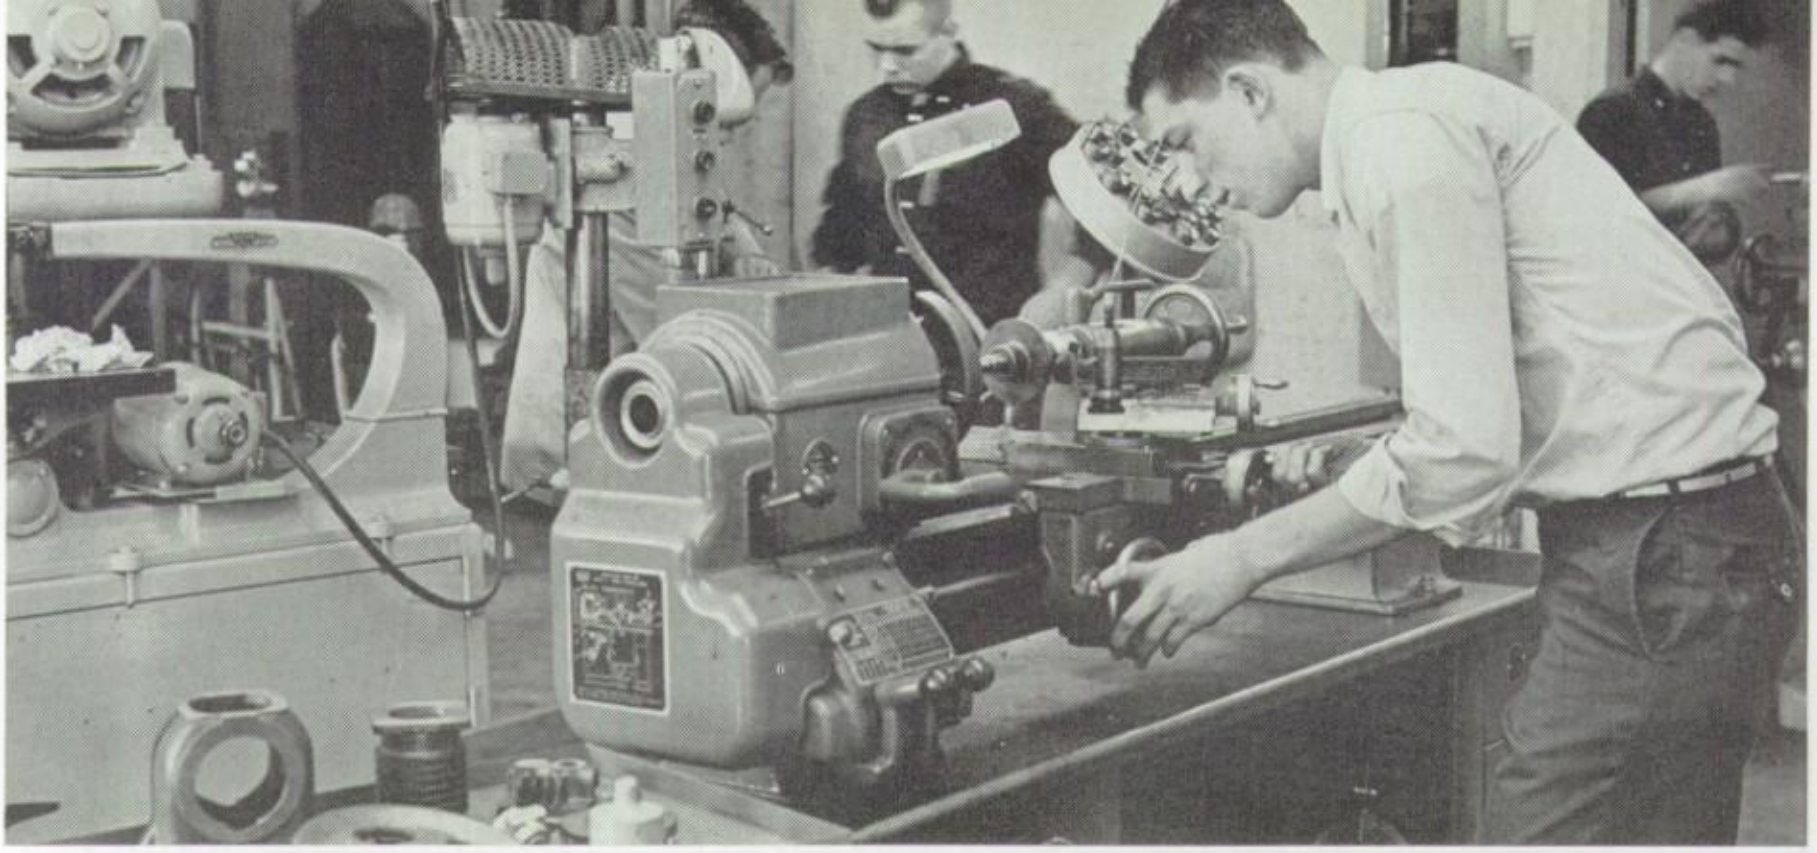
Biology and health deal literally with the study of life. A special biology course has been innovated this year, giving expanded coverage of material for the advanced student. Both subjects provide a background needed in all fields of science.

Thus, while trying to answer the age-old question "Why," students also discovered a whole new world opened up to them through science.



CONCENTRATING on the problem at hand, Greg Gross holds his breath as he adjusts the meticulously balanced scale in SHS's modern chemistry lab. A mistake at this point could throw the entire experiment out of kilter.

CAREFULLY FOCUSING his microscope, sophomore biologist Frank Floding explores a previously unknown world of cells and minute organisms. A special course offered this year enables advanced students to make a broader study of biology.



WITH A SURE pair of hands, second-year metal worker Larry Cope turns down the side cover for an air compressor. Boys in Metal Industries II develop technical problem-solving skills as well as facility in the use of tools.

Vocational, commercial courses develop

Through excellent guidance in the vocational arts department, students can train for specific occupations and learn various means of applying their talents toward everyday living.

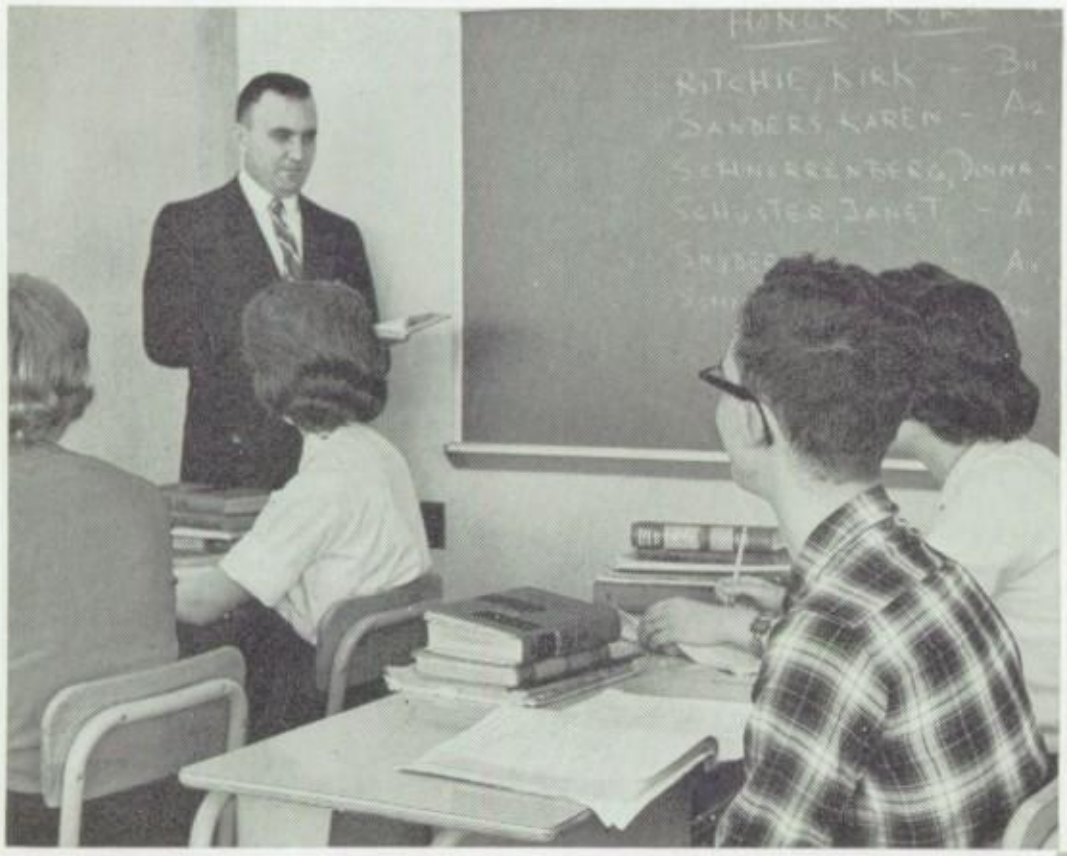
Amid the continual tapping of typewriters on the second floor, girls can prepare for future commercial positions. Through consumer education students learn to deal with the many problems confronting the average consumer. This course can be followed during the second semester by commercial law, which increases understanding of the citizen's personal rights and obligations in business situations.

For those who desire a business or merchandising career, distributive education presents an ideal program which combines specialized classroom instruction and supervised work experience. Salesmanship is also valuable for pupils with business aspirations.

Home economics classes strive toward proficiency in home etiquette and management, while girls in the foods classes prepare tasty meals which tease the appetites of all passers-by.

In the distant industrial arts wing, future technicians are trained with the latest machinery and equipment. Mechanical drawing and wood and metal industries make up the program.

A FINAL TWIST of the screwdriver brings senior Fred Schramm one step closer to the completion of a cedar chest. Boys in Wood Industries III make extensive use of the skills required in carpentry and patternmaking.



CENTRAL TREASURER Arthur Furey reviews the day's lesson with his bookkeeping class. The course is an important one for students planning to enter the business world.

SEEING HERSELF as others see her, and from every angle too, Cheryl Fromm fills in as a mannequin while Peggy Swartz marks her hemline. By their fourth year of home ec, SHSers have become skilled seamstresses.

job potentialities

BUSY FINGERS racing over the keys is an everyday operation in 205, as girls practice to see how many business letters they can type in one 45-minute period on their modern electric typewriters. Speed is emphasized as well as accuracy in Typing II classes.

Administration regulates school system,

BOARD OF EDUCATION — Clerk-treas. Wallace King, Mr. Gail Herron, Asst. Supt. Darrell Fadely, Pres. Orein Naragon, Supt. Paul Smith, Dr. Ralph Starbuck, Atty. Bryce Kendall, Mr. Robert Campbell.

ALWAYS ON THE JOB to insure top-level education in the Salem Public School System, Assistant Superintendent Darrell M. Fadely and Superintendent Paul E. Smith strive to furnish constant improvement in educational procedures.

Co-ordinating the operations of Salem public schools to give the citizenry the best educational program possible, Supt. Paul E. Smith has completed his fourth year as chief administrator of the school system.

His right-hand man, Asst. Supt. Darrell M. Fadely, aided the superintendent in monetary and maintenance matters. In the spring Mr. Fadely was granted a two-year leave of absence to carry on missionary work in Monrovia, Liberia. His duties will be distributed among various members of the school staff until his return in 1965.

The indispensable man in Salem Senior High is Prin. Beman Ludwig, without whose management SHS could not function as smoothly as it does.

The five members of the Board of Education, the policy-makers of the school system, regulated the finances which are so necessary to the maintenance of our schools. The Board also approved the addition of a special education class to SHS's curriculum. The class is designed to benefit those students who require more individual attention than is available in the ordinary classroom. Board members also decided to make modern language study available in the freshman year. In the past, SHSers could not begin a modern foreign language until their second year of high school.

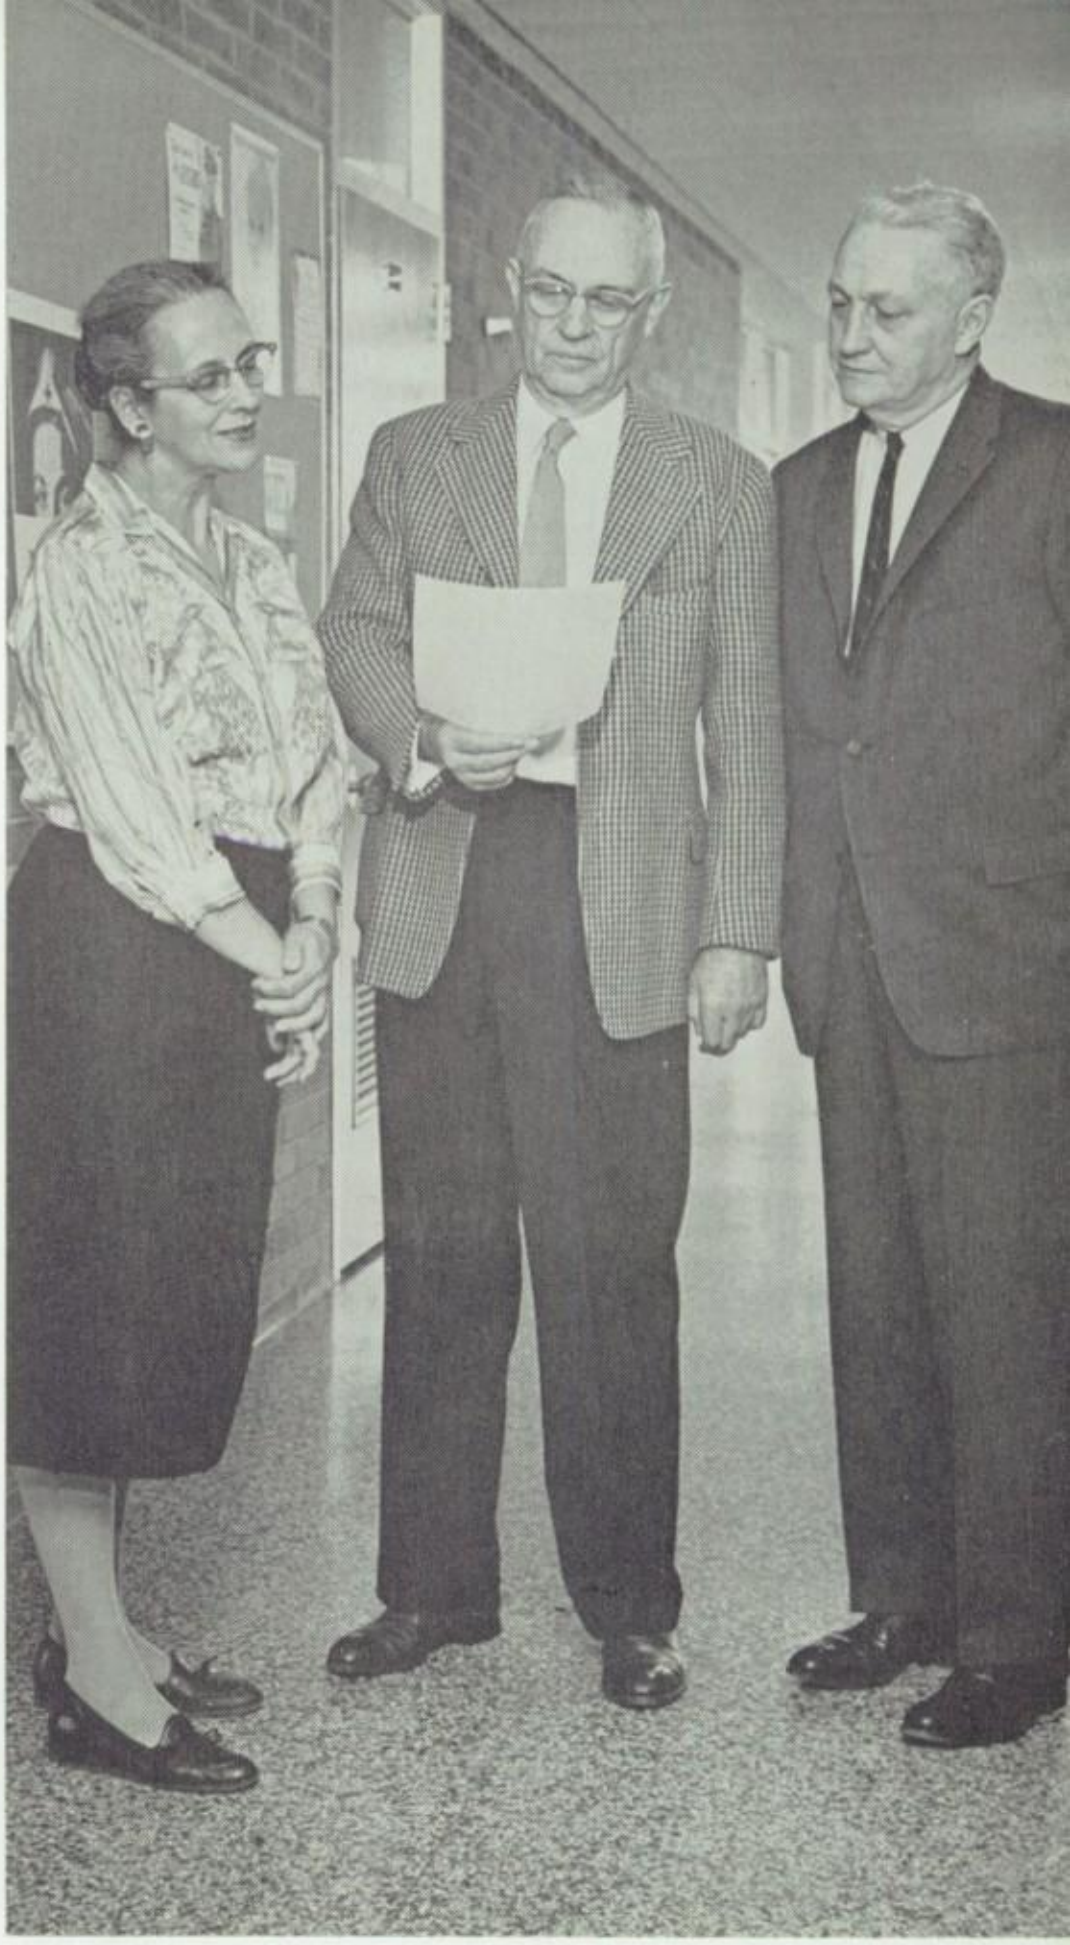
advances policies

From the moment we enter SHS as sophomores until we receive our long-awaited diplomas, our guidance counselors, Mrs. Doris Cope and Mr. John Callahan, are ready to lend us a helping hand and a sympathetic ear.

Mr. Callahan, assistant principal, has returned to SHS after spending two and a half years as Director of Teacher Certification at the State Department of Education in Columbus. Mrs. Cope has completed her third year as girls' guidance counselor.

In constant contact with students throughout their high school years, Mrs. Cope and Mr. Callahan assume varied roles. Advice to incoming students who are planning their courses of study and the administration of various aptitude and vocational tests constitute only part of their duties. They must be true advisers, tactfully trying to iron out the many problems students bring to them. Their final task is to assist seniors in making suitable post-graduation plans.

Mr. Callahan advises the Student Council while Mrs. Cope contributes her spare time to being Y-Teen co-ordinator.



THE TOP BRASS of Salem Senior High, Mrs. Doris Cope, girls' guidance counselor; Mr. Beman Ludwig, principal; and Mr. John Callahan, assistant principal, take a few minutes to confer on one of the many problems which are brought to their attention during a typical day in SHS.

TWO OF THE most friendly and familiar faces in the school are those of secretaries Mrs. Erla Yates and Mrs. Donna Durham, who try to answer the multitude of questions which information-seeking students present throughout the day.

STRUMMIN' AND HUMMIN' with the Kenley Players' orchestra at Packard Music Hall in Warren, Mr. Richard Howenstine, SHS's marching-band director, takes a brief pause before the curtain rises on the evening's play, "Flower Drum Song."

Our teachers

A strong concern for youth guided each of our forty teachers into the challenging field of secondary education. Realizing the importance of their task, they gave generously of their knowledge and sound advice. Encouraging us to think, experience, and absorb, they helped to broaden our understanding of the enigmatic world about us.

Through their guidance in extra-curricular activities and participation in after-school get-togethers, our common interests were shared. And in them we have found lasting friends as they gave us assurance in time of doubt and encouragement in time of depression.

To take the mind of an unknowing youth and mold it into that of a responsible citizen — that is their task. We believe they have done it well.

A 30-MINUTE reprieve in the teachers' dining room gives everyone a chance to recover from a morning of hard work.

with students

While students pondered nightly homework, SHS teachers were burning some midnight oil of their own as a few from their ranks traveled to neighboring colleges for advanced work in their chosen fields. After enriching their minds through summer courses or night classes, they passed their new learning on to awaiting students.

Various workshops and conferences provided our instructors with a means of acquiring authoritative firsthand information concerning the new materials and teaching methods which are continually being introduced to improve educational procedures. Listening to lectures by distinguished educators in diversified fields, some sought home education through early-morning television programs.

Our teachers conscientiously employed these methods as their continual desire for knowledge and self-improvement led them to higher education.

When not occupied with classroom affairs, the faculty members of SHS indulge in personal outside interests as varied as the subjects they teach.

Church activities claim the attention of several teachers. Mr. Olloman, Mr. Edwin Miller, and Mr. Cope all serve as elders in the United Presbyterian Church. Miss McKenna directs the St. George's choir in Lisbon, while Mrs. Loria has been a devoted member of the Methodist Church choir for 21 years.

Active in civic activities, Miss Martha McCready holds a membership on the Town Hall Committee, while Mr. Frank Tarr likes to spend his spare time working with his ham radio equipment.

Whether benefiting the public or just seeking relaxation, our teachers have shown themselves to be generous and well-rounded individuals.

provide relaxation

Amid the constant bustle at SHS are the custodians and cafeteria workers, whose unceasing labor is so necessary to the successful daily function of our school.

From early in the morning until mid-afternoon, the cafeteria hums with activity as nourishing meals are prepared for students and teachers alike. Planning these well-balanced meals is Mrs. Rachel Pandolph, who has been dietitian here for the past five years.

Performing countless services for students and teachers and maintaining the beauty of our modern building are the busy custodians, who may be found doing almost anything at anytime anywhere in SHS. To improve their total work efficiency, the custodians attended weekly classes at the Salem Trades Extension, where they learned of new custodial techniques and materials. They also journey to Canton each June to attend a clinic held by the Ohio Association of Public School Employees.

Four janitresses on the night custodial staff have the immense task of cleaning every room in SHS, while the night custodian, Mr. Willard Crowl, opens classrooms for the numerous evening classes and meetings which are held throughout the year.

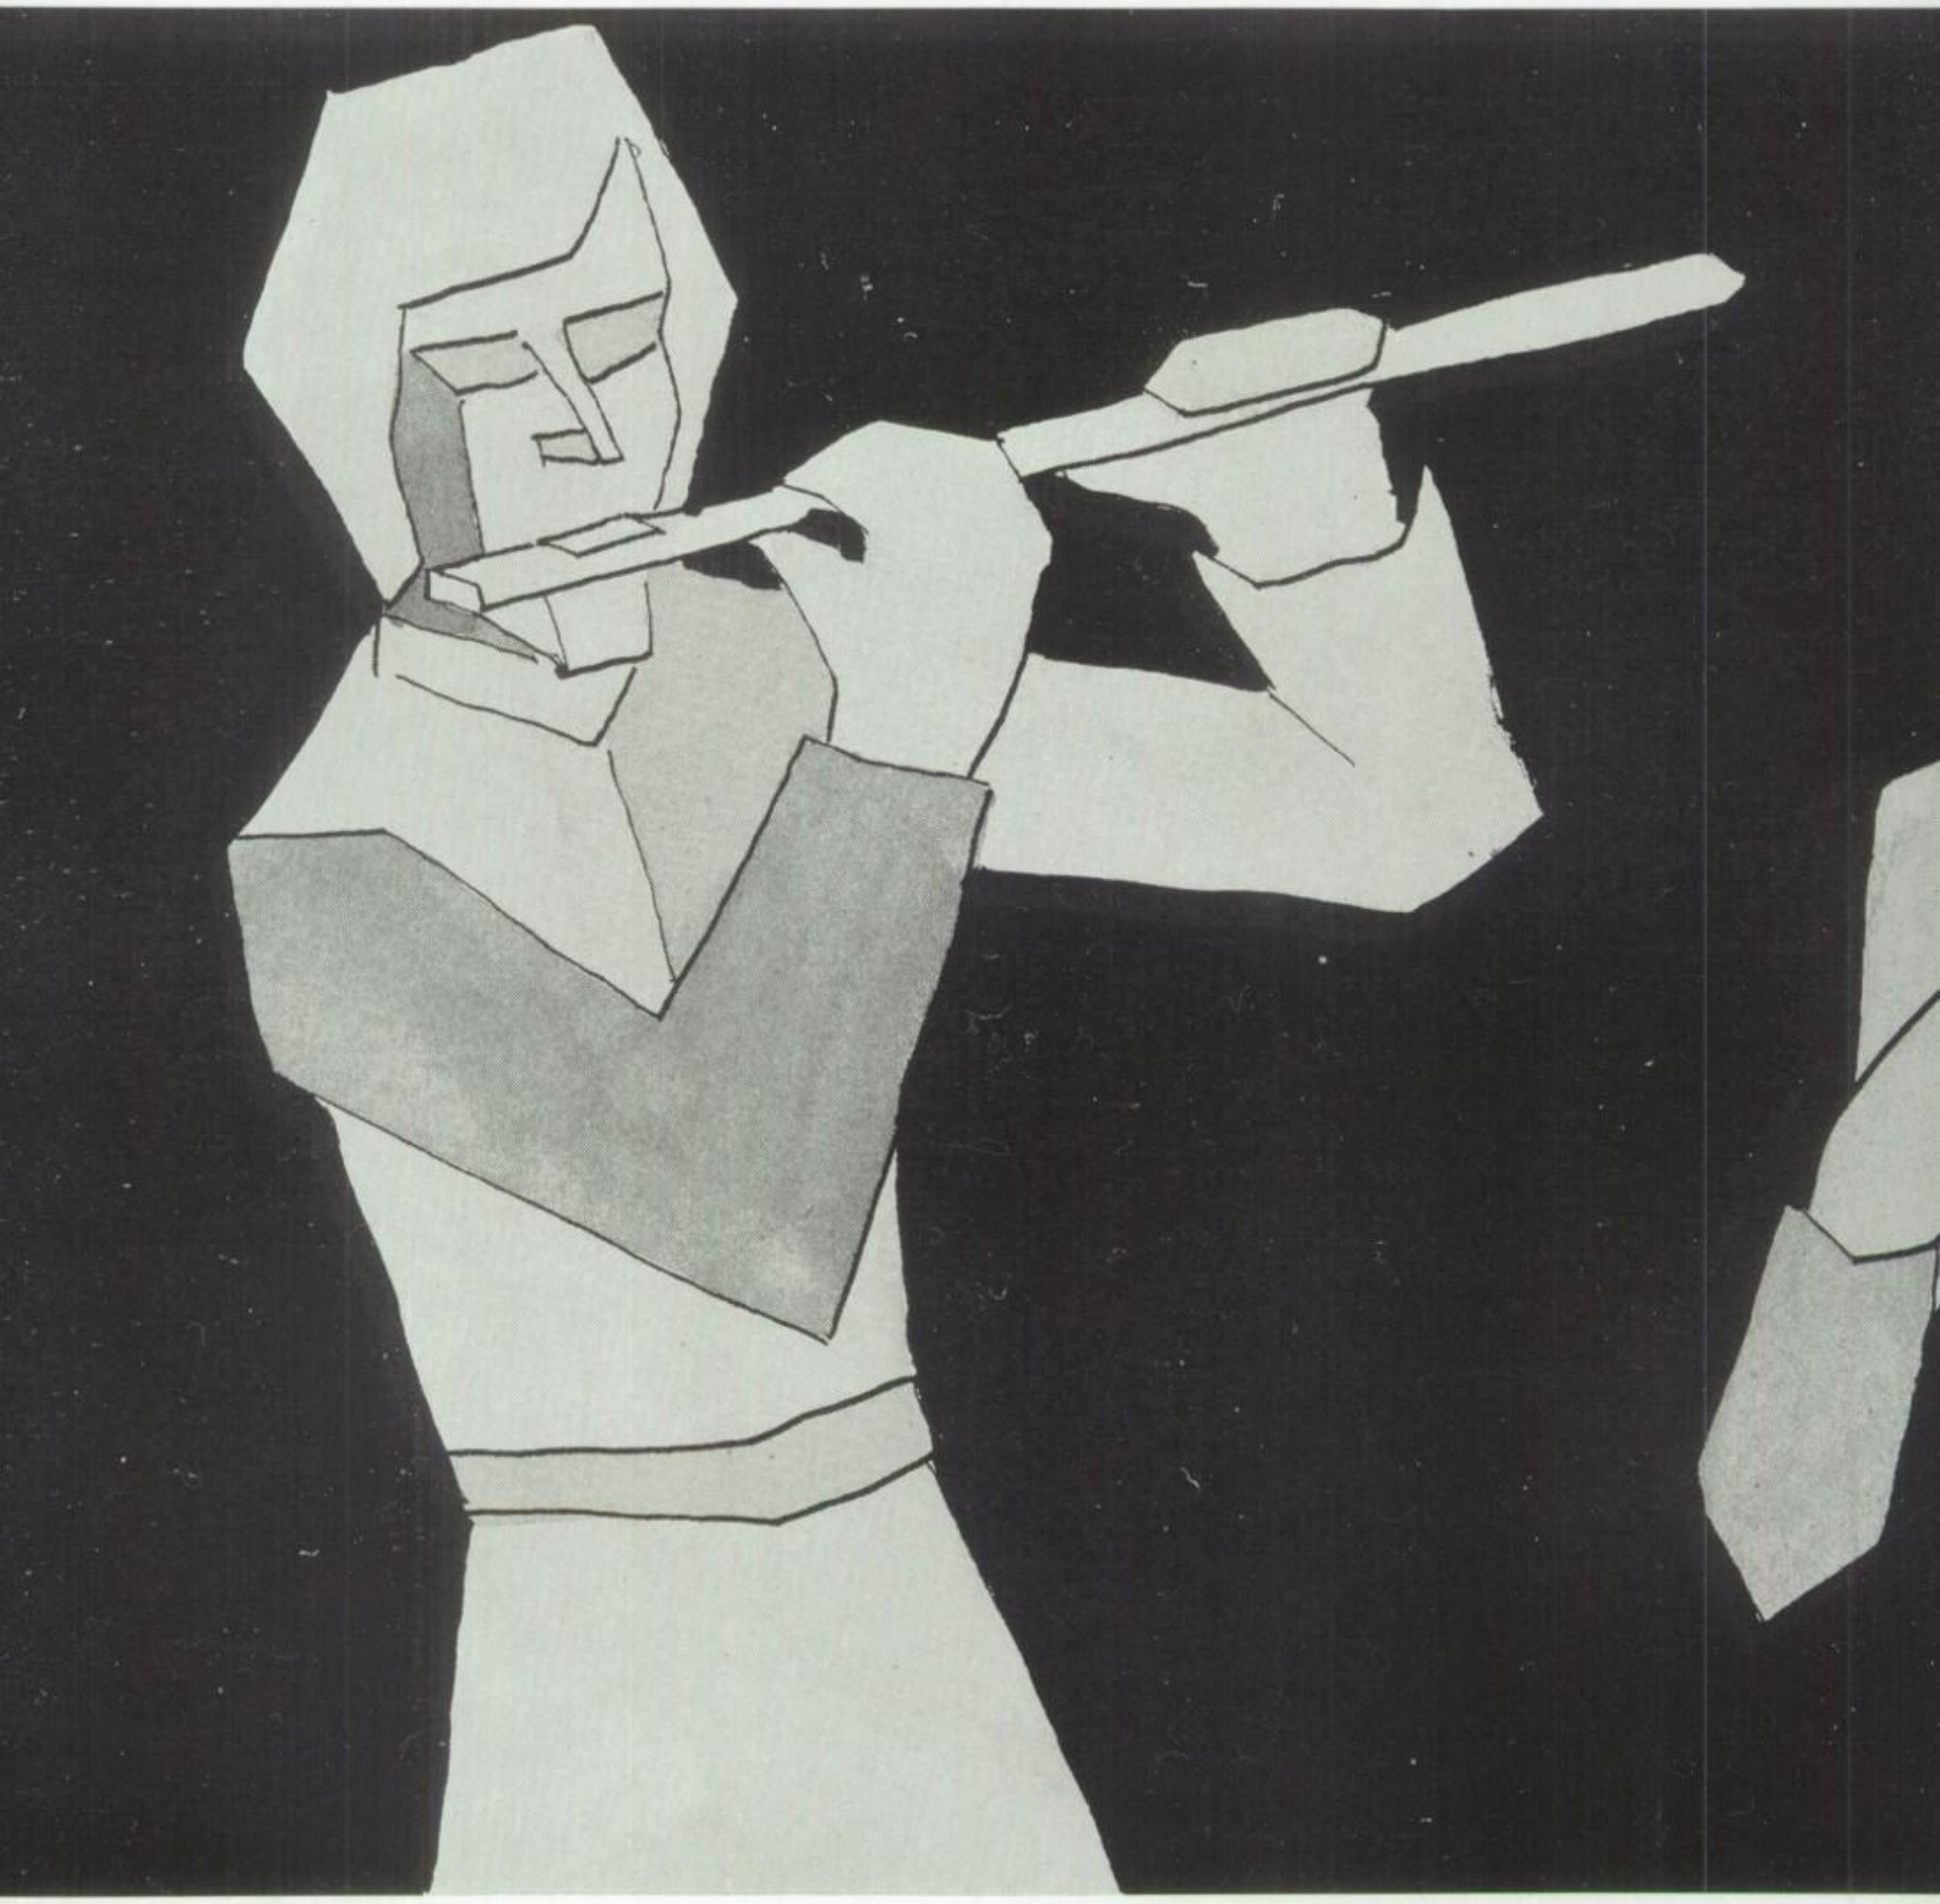
Diverse activities encourage leadership,



develop talent

The hum of voices, a pounding gavel, the rustle of paper as roll is called and minutes read, open discussion, and Robert's Rules apparently forgotten are familiar sounds typifying SHS activities. These along with typewriters tapping in the Quaker office, horns tuning and voices warming up in the music wing, show our diverse interest. Such extra-curricular activities provide an outlet for pent-up tensions through association with students sharing the same interests. While offering an opportunity to extend services to the school and community and to make new friends, SHS organizations also develop talents, perfect skills, and increase our knowledge in special areas. For those who are willing to do more than just participate, there are positions of leadership and responsibility. Thus our extra-curricular program is geared to meet the needs of every SHS student.

Council revises snack bar management

STUDENT COUNCIL officers Carol Porter, sec.; Janet Burns, parle.; Rich Sweitzer, vice-pres.; and Bill Beery, pres.; sample the wares of the snack bar which, under the supervision of the SC, became a major source of their income.

By sponsoring special school events, providing leadership, and promoting the expression of student opinion, the Student Council has become one of the most influential organizations in SHS.

In the fall the management of the student lounge and the snack bar was revised. Instead of hiring students, homeroom representatives worked during after-school hours without pay so that the SC could attain as much profit as possible.

Co-sponsoring Vocations Day with the Hi-Tri, members of a special SC committee secured 48 qualified speakers to discuss opportunities in diversified careers. This event was followed by Student-Teachers Day, during which students eyeing the teaching profession instructed classes.

Because school problems are a major concern of the Council, a special meeting was called to discuss student sportsmanship at basketball games.

After a week of campaigning in February, next year's officers were chosen in a school election.

Along with April came several projects to secure money to bring an American Field Service exchange student here for the fourth consecutive year.

Hi-Tri philanthropists help fill AFS till

Hi-Tri means strength — the strength of will, of hope, of purpose, of truth, and of love.

With this motto in mind, Hi-Tri members endeavored to serve others in their school and in their community.

Early in the fall each new member was given a big sister, who in turn presented her little sister with a sterling triangular pin during the solemn candlelight installation on Nov. 13.

Advisers Mrs. Beryl Tarr and Miss Claribel Bickel directed the girls as they provided food, clothing, and toys for needy families at Thanksgiving and Christmas, co-sponsored Vocations Day with the Student Council, and arranged for the annual Mother-Daughter Banquet in the spring, during which new officers were installed.

Finding its treasury overflowing from profits gained at concession stands and those carried over from the previous year, the club contributed a considerable sum to the American Field Service.

Membership in the honor society is open to any junior or senior girl maintaining a 3.0 average during each semester she is in high school.

PUTTING THEIR IDEALS of service to others into practice, Hi-Tri officers Judy Cope, president; Diana Greenawalt, vice-president; Linda Crawford, secretary; and Kay Koontz, treasurer, prepare a Thanksgiving treat for a needy family.

OFFICERS of the Key Club, John Harroff, secretary; Darryl Everett, president; Dave Capel, vice-president; and Bill Beery, treasurer, provided able leadership during Wednesday night meetings in the student lounge.

Carrying on its tradition of service to the school and community, the Key Club successfully completed its fourth year of organization at SHS.

By staging the yearly Salem High Scholarship Banquet and the Basketball Tip Off Dance, assisting the Memorial Building in the city-wide Punt, Pass, and Kick Contest, and officially welcoming basketball opponents, Key Clubbers, guided by Mr. Frank Tarr, enhanced school-community relations and practiced civic-mindedness.

In conjunction with their parent club, Kiwanis, members attended the organization's weekly luncheons, participated in Kiwanis Kapers, and assisted in the White Elephant Sale. The boys also were in charge of the maintenance of Quaker Sam, who adorns the gym as SHS's symbol of sportsmanship.

In the spring a delegation was sent to the state Key Club meeting in Columbus and to the international convention in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Formaldeaides tour experimental station

After beginning the year by ratifying a new constitution and electing new officers, the Formaldeaides centered their attention on their common interest — biology.

Excursions included a spring jaunt to the Wooster Experimental Station and a tour of Cleveland's Health Museum and Museum of Natural History.

Two guest speakers presented the club with authoritative programs. Enlightening the students on the relationship between electricity and biology, Prof. George Osterman of Mount Union College explained the functions of an electrocardiogram and the involvement of electricity with the human heart.

Lindley Vickers, Youngstown naturalist and newspaper columnist, showed slides of Mill Creek Park and explained how wildlife is preserved in area forests and parks. Films were also shown by Mr. John Olloman, biology teacher and club adviser.

Any junior or senior who has a sincere interest in biology or science in general may be a member.

In the midst of a sea of photographs, dummy sheets, grease pencils, rubber cement, and reams of paper, the 1963 QUAKER and 15 issues of the bi-weekly SALEM QUAKER were produced.

To keep students informed of school activities, bi-weekly editors spent seemingly endless hours checking assignments, gathering copy, composing headlines, and laying out dummy pages, all before the dreaded Tuesday deadline. No let up was in sight until after the distribution of the final issue, when editors and reporters alike could relax and look back proudly on their year's work.

Early last summer plans for the 1963 yearbook got under way. Gradually the dummy took form, pictures were cropped and sent to the engraver, copy was edited, and headlines and captions began to materialize. As the once far-away deadline approached, panic grew and activity increased. At last the dummy was put into the hands of the printer, and editors could breathe a final sigh of relief.

The financial burden of both publications fell on the business manager and her capable staff of admen. Using new techniques in their sales approaches, they transferred entries in the QUAKER account from red to black ink. After securing ads and collecting fees for the QUAKER bi-weekly, staff members devoted Friday afternoons to counting and wrapping the newspapers for circulation. Their final task was a pleasurable one when they distributed editions of the yearbook to advertisers.

PEP CLUB

Enthusiastic students wishing to play a part in boosting Quaker spirit have found the Pep Club to be an ideal organization. During the year club members participated in pep assemblies, organized rallies around blazing bonfires, and adorned the halls of SHS with timely, spirit-rousing posters.

The highlight of the year's activities came in December when the club sponsored a dance honoring the Basketball Sweetheart and her court.

ASSOCIATION

High prices may be here to stay, but SHSers won't have any problem if they join the Association.

The purchase of a six-dollar ticket enables students to attend all home football and basketball games, track meets, and Association-sponsored assemblies and parties. Members also receive all issues of the QUAKER bi-weekly and QUAKER annual.

Business adviser is Central Treasurer Arthur Furey, while Miss Janis Yereb is social adviser.

Y-TEENS

Three groups of high school girls interested in fun, friendship, and just being teens were sponsored by Salem's still-growing YWCA.

While getting their first taste of high school life, sophomore Y-Teens witnessed a panel discussion on parent-daughter relationships and sponsored the "Oldies But Goodies Dance" in the spring.

A Tupperware party, an evening of swimming in Alliance, and hours spent planning a future trip to New York City kept the junior gals busy.

With profits from the coat check at home basketball games, senior Y-Teens realized a long-time dream when they journeyed to Washington, D.C., during spring vacation. To make the year complete, they purchased a gift for the Y building.

Co-ordinating the activities of the three clubs is the newly organized Inter-Club Council, which is made up of three representatives from each group.

The girls are guided by Mrs. Anna Ruth Everhart, Mrs. Lou Chappell, Mrs. Helen Krichbaum, Mrs. Mildred Phillips, and Mrs. Doris Cope.

WITH A face bright and cheerful enough to enlighten any patient, candy striper Judy Kloos begins her rounds in the city hospital. Y-Teen members work after school and throughout the summer months as a service to the community.

ASSOCIATION OFFICERS Fred Naragon, vice-president; Marlin Waller, president; and Linda Allen, secretary-treasurer, present the membership trophy to 208 representative Jim Ward. All students in Jim's homeroom enrolled.

DE CLUB OFFICERS Bob Hippely, president (seated); John Panezott, vice-president; Barbara Allison, secretary; and Jackie Kelly, treasurer, display the winning smile which is the stock in trade of every successful salesman.

Supplementing the regular distributive education program with some social life, the DE Club began its fifth year in Salem with 16 members.

Although DE Clubbers found their leisure periods sparse with classes scheduled in the morning and work at local retail stores occupying afternoon hours, they still found time to stage a gala Christmas party, enjoy an old-fashioned hayride, and decorate the Santa Claus House in co-operation with the Jaycees and Salem merchants.

Fourteen of the Salem members attended the District DE Convention in Akron, while the Leadership Conference in Columbus attracted five Salem students and adviser Mrs. Phyllis Love. Each of the five participated in one of several contests — window display, ad layouts, sales demonstration, job interviewing, and speech, all of which centered around the theme "Opportunities Unlimited."

Profits accumulated from candy vending and two bake sales were used to defray the costs of the spring employer-employee banquet, the climax of the year's distributive education activities.

Chosen in the fall for their reliability and personality by Prin. Beman Ludwig, the handy johnny-on-the-spot monitors relinquished one study hall each day to greet visitors, give directions, run errands, deliver messages, and escort forgetful students to lockers. They were depended upon to perform these and other assigned tasks as they aided in the daily functioning of SHS.

Answering phones, filing papers, typing records, delivering messages and wearing out shoe leather were all in the line of duty for the deans' aids, who were selected for their efficiency and dependability by Mrs. Doris Cope and Mr. Deane Phillips. These indispensable helpers lightened the load for the deans while getting a firsthand peek into the behind-the-scenes activity at SHS.

Assistants perform daily tasks to

"Psst, would you help me with my . . ." is an often-heard distress signal heeded daily by student assistants who wish to work more closely with their favorite subject, whether it be French, German, biology, home economics, or plane geometry.

The always-active language aids spend each day operating tape recorders, taking attendance, conjugating verbs, and assisting students with their pronunciation of unfamiliar sounds.

Home economic assistants are kept busy making weekly grocery lists, attractively arranging the bulletin boards, and drawing preparation charts.

A never-ending stack of papers greets plane geometry aids, who also occasionally help Mrs. Loria make out quizzes.

By far the largest group of aids is found in biology classes. While grading laboratory manuals, assisting in dissection, and setting up equipment and experiments, they also receive the benefit of a full year's review of the course.

PLANE GEOMETRY aids Kathy Papic and Sue Schmid retreat to a rear corner to check some formal proofs. No doubt students hope that the girls aren't too red-pencil happy.

PREPARING THE weekly shopping for home ec classes are aids Peggy Swartz, Karen Fieldhouse, and Kay Finch, who meanwhile get experience that will help them as future homemakers.

Mathematicians, artists pursue interests

Guided by adviser Miss Martha McCready, fourth-year math students attempted to master that ingenious mathematical aid, the slide rule.

With slip-sticks in hand they practiced short cuts to tedious mathematical procedures during biweekly meetings on Wednesday afternoons. The club also bought a gift for the math department with profits netted at the basketball stand.

Organized so that art-minded students could share aesthetic interests, the Art Club, under the supervision of art instructor Miss Janis Yereb, was able to journey to two of the finest museums in the area, the Cleveland Institute of Art and the Butler Institute of American Art in Youngstown.

The necessary funds were provided with earnings from the club's after-school bake sales.

GAA members peddle rabbits, boost kitty

"A girl in every sport and a sport for every girl" — such was the idea behind the formation of the Girls' Athletic Association. The organization welcomes any female athlete who desires to participate in a variety of sports.

Instructed by phys ed teacher Miss Betty McKenna at weekly activity meetings, girls tested their agility at kickball, speedball, basketball, and volleyball. In the spring they formed bowling teams and also took part in outdoor activities.

To finance a bi-annual journey to New York City or Washington, D. C., the girls sold a variety of articles. In the fall the group peddled Salem Quaker sweatshirts, and soon Christmas cards and decorations were on their list of wares. The Easter season prompted the sale of chocolate rabbits.

Being concerned for others as well as themselves, the girls packed a basket of food for a needy family over the Christmas holidays.

In the brilliant glow cast by new stadium lights, the red and gray displayed their talents in precision marching, fancy routines, and baton twirling. Dur- the game the spirited numbers of the band added extra zip to the love-those-Quakers atmosphere.

In addition to marching in parades and pep rallies, the bandsmen attended Band Day at Kent State University, where they participated in a half-time show with 2000 other young muscians.

The final bounce of the pigskin was the signal for foot-weary members of the marching band to make their way to assigned concert chairs.

Of eight soloists who performed at the District 8 Solo and Ensemble Contest, six were given superior ratings and two were rated excellent. The woodwind ensemble was also rated superior.

In March the entire band traveled to the District Band and Choir Contest in Hammondsville.

In May the bandsmen took part in a music festival in Jefferson, presented the traditional Spring Concert, and ended the year on a sunny note by marching in the annual Memorial Day festivities.

A Thanksgiving assembly was the choristers' first appearance, which was soon followed by the presentation of the Christmas Vespers program. The chorus also performed for the Kiwanis Club during the holiday season.

One of the most highly anticipated events was the All-County Music Festival in Lisbon. Fifty-one members joined with 150 other singers in a concert with the All-County Band.

In addition to collecting donations on Tag Day, choristers peddled magazine subscriptions, mints, and peanut clusters to increase funds in their treasury.

During the final week in March, the entire choir attended the District Band and Choir Contest at Stanton Local High School in Hammondsville with high hopes of attaining a superior rating which would thus qualify them for state competition.

All the songsters beamed with pride when two from their ranks, Gary Hasson and Clyde Miller, were chosen to be members of a 51-voice chorus, the School Choir of America, which will tour Europe for an entire month this summer.

The termination of the year's events came in May with the annual Spring Concert, during which the Chorister of the Year was honored.

A chance to learn and a chance to sing — these are the opportunities given to members of the Mixed Chorus and the Girls' Glee Club.

The Glee Club is made up entirely of sophomore girls, while the Mixed Chorus consists of boys and girls from all classes.

After weeks of drilling on scales to develop tone, members of both choruses participated in the annual Christmas and spring concerts and school assemblies. In reward for their perseverance throughout the year, choristers from both groups were screened by Director Edwin Miller for prospective membership in the select Robed Choir.

By assisting in the sales of candy, magazines, and other money-making projects, these SHS songsters helped to boost funds in the choir treasury.

To promote an interest in the Spanish people, their culture, and above all, their language, was the primary concern of Los Conquistadores, SHS's Spanish club.

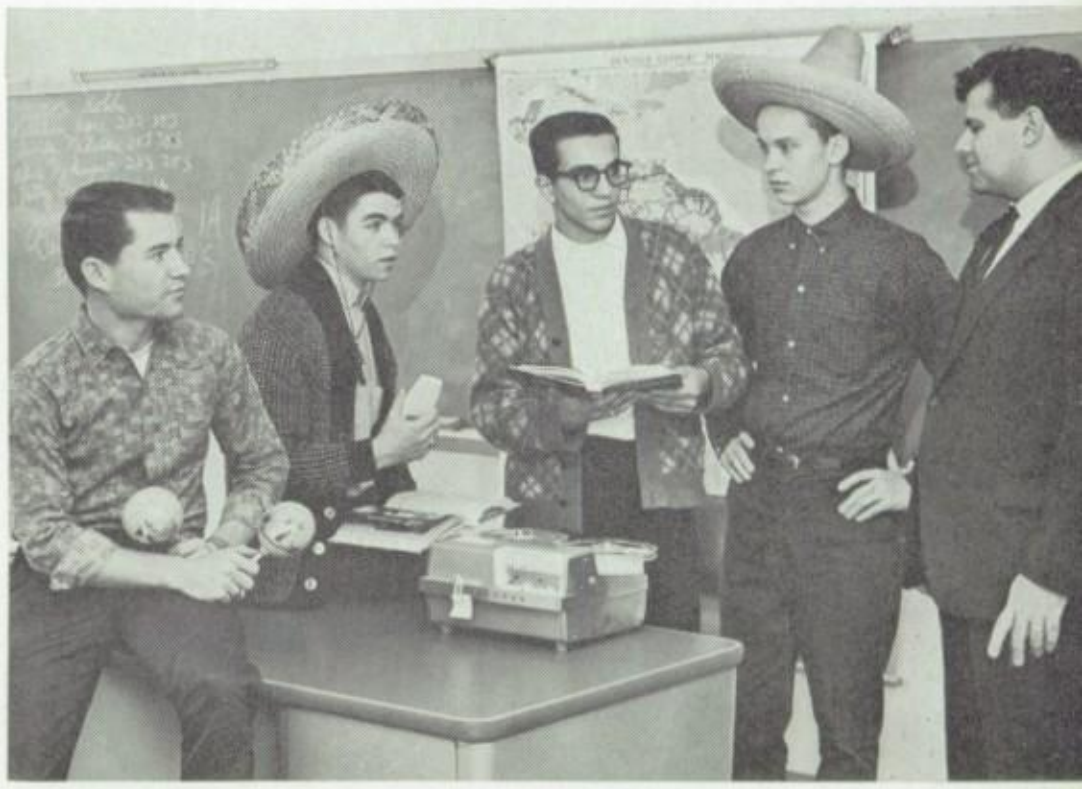
Mike Rians, a Salem High School senior who was awarded a trip to Brazil in a newscarrier contest sponsored by the Salem News last spring, showed some picturesque color slides of his journey.

Another guest was Tina Suarez, a Cuban refugee who was studying at Youngstown University.

To benefit Spanish students in years to come, the Conquistadores have begun a record club. The disks, which were purchased with money collected at the basketball concession stand, are recordings of Spanish music and language.

In April the Spaniards staged their traditional dance to climax the year's activities.

The club, which is advised by Mr. Anthony Monteleone, is made up of all interested Spanish II students and those students of Spanish I who have a B average for the first semester.



SPANISH CLUB officers Jim Ward, secretary; Rick Platt, vice-president; Rich Parlontieri, treasurer; and Jack Sweet, president, like to dress appropriately for the occasion as they take some recording lessons from Mr. Anthony Monteleone.

Athletic competition builds character, spurs school spirit

"It is for us to be dedicated here to preserve the Salem winning tradition." More than just a motto, these words reflect the attitude of every Quaker fan toward our sports endeavors. Deeply entrenched as a part of our school life, our sports have been stressed since the early grade-school years. Always behind our teams whether winning or losing, we armed ourselves with posters and confetti, letting neither class nor team loyalty suffer. While the competitive "Battle Cry" was still echoing through the gym, we sang "Play the Game for Salem." But our interests are not limited to the varsity level. In response to the increased country-wide emphasis on youth fitness, our intramural program has been continuously stepped up, giving every Salem student a chance to participate in competitive sports. Thus through our wholehearted support of our varsity athletics and participation in the intramural program, we maintain the sporting fervor of Salem Senior High.

1962 cindermen overcome inexperience,

TO EACH HIS OWN — his own method of clearing the crossbar, that is. High-jumper Bill Beery may not have his usual form and finesse in this shot, but he succeeds in doing the job. Bill competed in four events for the Quakers.

With only five seniors on the roster, the Salem High School track team completed the 1962 campaign with a 6-1 dual meet record and a victory in the lone triangular meet.

For the third consecutive year the Quaker thinclads copped the Columbiana County Meet, edging rival Columbiana by a scant four points. Seniors Dave Edling and Ty Enders received special awards for being the high scorers of the AA contest. This victory was recorded as the seventh championship in the last ten county meets for the Quakers. Salem also took seventh place in the Mentor Relays and tenth place in the Class AA District Meet.

The Ravenna Ravens handed the Quakers their first loss in three years in dual competition. This loss marked only the second dual defeat since 1954 for Salem.

Five Quaker cindermen qualified in district competition for the state meet in Columbus. Bill Beery ran in the 440-yd. dash and anchored the mile-relay team of Jim Ward, Dave Taus, and Tad Bonsall. Ty Enders represented Salem in the field events as he qualified for the discus competition.

REALIZING THE necessity of a fast start in sprints, 1962 captain Dave Edling works to quicken his pace off the starting blocks. Dave came through with consistent wins in the dashes and was a standout for the Quakers in the broad jump.

STRAINING EVERY MUSCLE, broad jumper Dave Capel winces as he lands explosively in a pile of sawdust. Dave was also a star halfback and a mainstay on the basketball team.

UNFORTUNATELY, it's only practice as Gary Hasson, Ken Krause, and John Tarleton cross the finish line after a hard-run mile. With three sub-five-minute milers, Salem showed some exceptional strength in distance events.

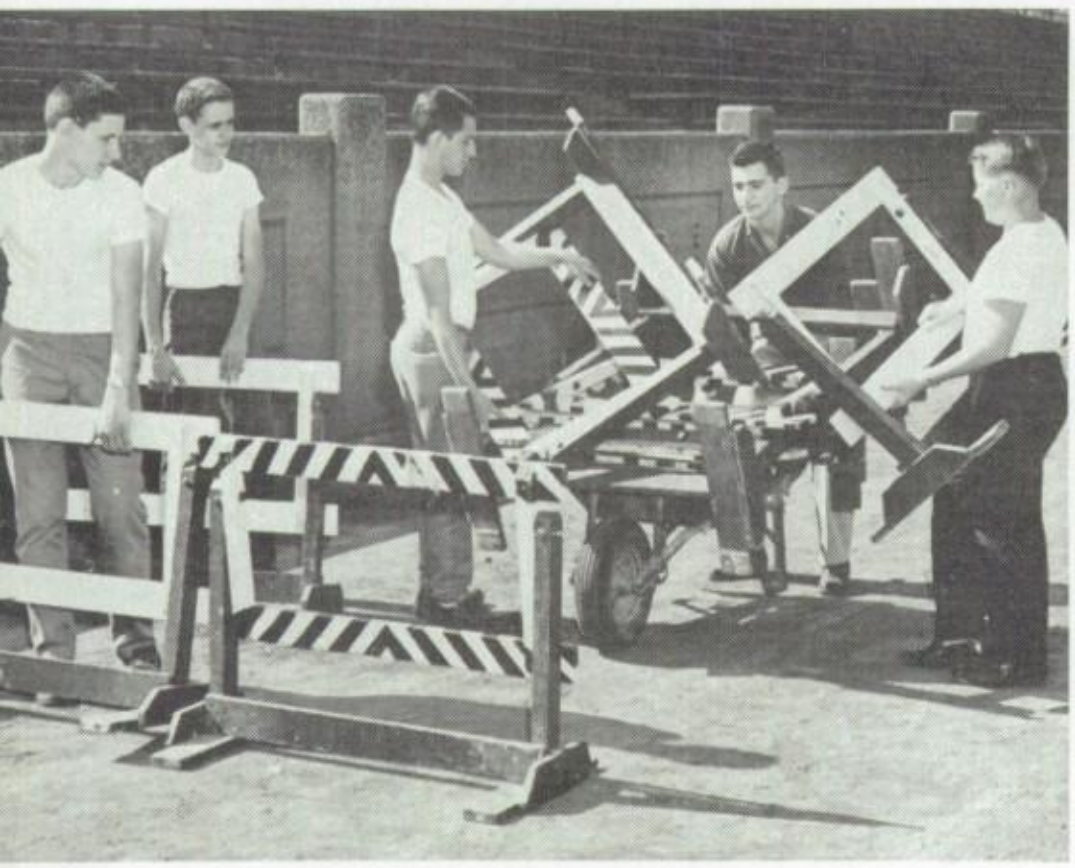
Quaker thinclads bring home first in HEAVING HURDLES into a wheelbarrow isn't their idea of fun, but track managers Chuck Rheutan, George Zeigler, Bill Shasteen, Frank Aiello, and Roger Smith don't seem to mind for the work lets them be close to a sport they enjoy.



The Quaker thinclads erased one record and tied another during 1962.

Salem's mile-relay team bettered both the school and county marks. The Quakers' time of 3:35.6 knocked two-tenths of a second off the school record of 3:35.8 set by Dan Krichbaum, Dick Burt, Tom Floyd, and Gordy Scullion in 1960. Versatile Bill Beery, anchor man of the record-breaking quartet, also tied the school record for the 440-yd. dash of 52.2 set by Dan Krichbaum in 1960.

The best marks of 1962 were as follows:
120 high hurdles . . . 0:17.9 — Junior Piscitani
100-yd. dash . . . 0:10.6 — Dave Edling
Mile run . . . 4:41.7 — John Tarleton
Half-mile relay . . . 1:41.7 — Pete Nollier,
Dallas Wells, Tom Bauman, Art Spack
440-yd. dash . . . 0:52.2 — Bill Beery
180 low hurdles . . . 0:23.5 — Reed Wilson
Half mile . . . 2:09.3 — Gary Hasson
220-yd. dash . . . 0:24.2 — Dave Edling

Broad jump . . . 19 ft., 5½ in. — Dave Edling
High jump . . . 5 ft., 7 in. — Bill Beery

ALTHOUGH KICKING his legs hard and straight to attain height, Junior Piscitani seems to float effortlessly over the hurdle. His time of 0:17.9 was the best of any Quaker cinderman in the 120-yard hurdle event.

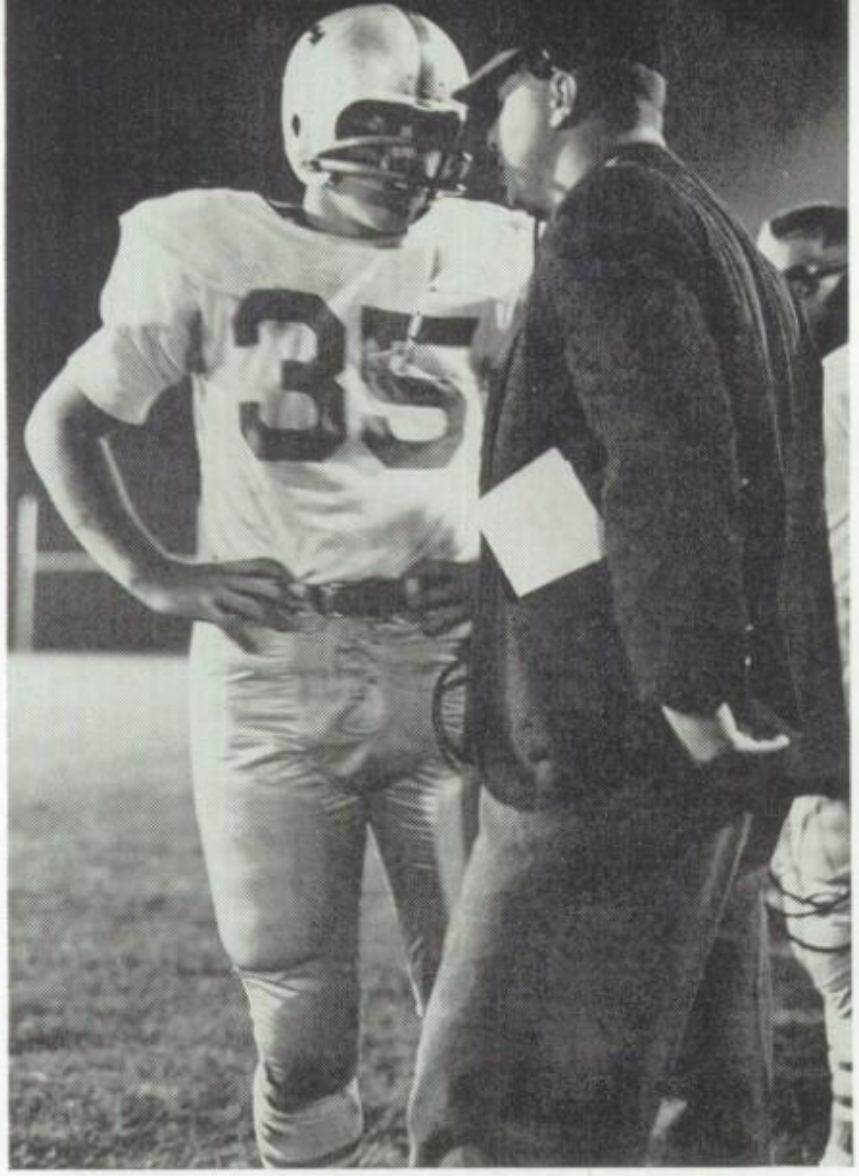
WITH DETERMINATION reflected in their expressions, cindermen Dave Taus and Jim Ward practice their specialty, the mile relay. Hours of practice are required to acquire the timing necessary for lightning-fast baton passing.



"NOW GET IN there and drive!" urges Coach Blaine Morton to Bob Owens before sending the powerful fullback into the game. Bob's plunges into the line gave the Quakers the extra punch they needed during their drives downfield.

Powerful gridders

Facing one of the toughest schedules in the school's history, Coach Blaine Morton's Quaker Varsity compiled a record of six wins and four losses for the second consecutive year.

Following a 20-6 opening victory on Sept. 7 over the invading Ashland Arrows, the varsity gridders subdued a weak Youngstown North squad, which fell 30-14 before the aggressive locals.

Sept. 21 found the Mortonmen on the road to Ravenna. Using a quick-hitting end sweep, the Ravens raced to an early 8-6 lead, but Salem rebounded to a one-sided 42-14 victory as six silver-helmeted locals crossed the Raven goal line.

The following week the Red and Black scored one of their most spectacular victories in recent years. Playing host to the huge Farrell Nightriders, the Quakers fought back from a 13-12 deficit and scored the winning TD on the rain-soaked field with only 46 seconds left on the clock.

trous for the Mortonmen as they fell Oct. 5 to the powerful Tigers 30-16 in one of the top state-wide contests of the week. The Salemites found things equally rough-going on Oct. 12 against an Akron Hoban eleven who humbled the locals 52-13.

A fourth-quarter uprising enabled the Red and Black to break open a tight contest and hand the Wellsville Bengals a 32-12 defeat on Oct. 19.

In their next two games the Quakers' offense became suddenly impotent as they lost to the fired-up Boardman Spartans 18-6 and tumbled 20-8 before East Liverpool's Potters. The aggressive line-play of these opponents caused the local gridders to lose numerous scoring opportunities.

The final game of the 1962 campaign saw the journeying Quaker eleven defeat the Dover Tornadoes 12-0 in a steady downpour. The charging Quakers were never in danger as they ground out a mud-spattered victory, gaining revenge for the 30-6 defeat at the hands of the Tornadoes last year.

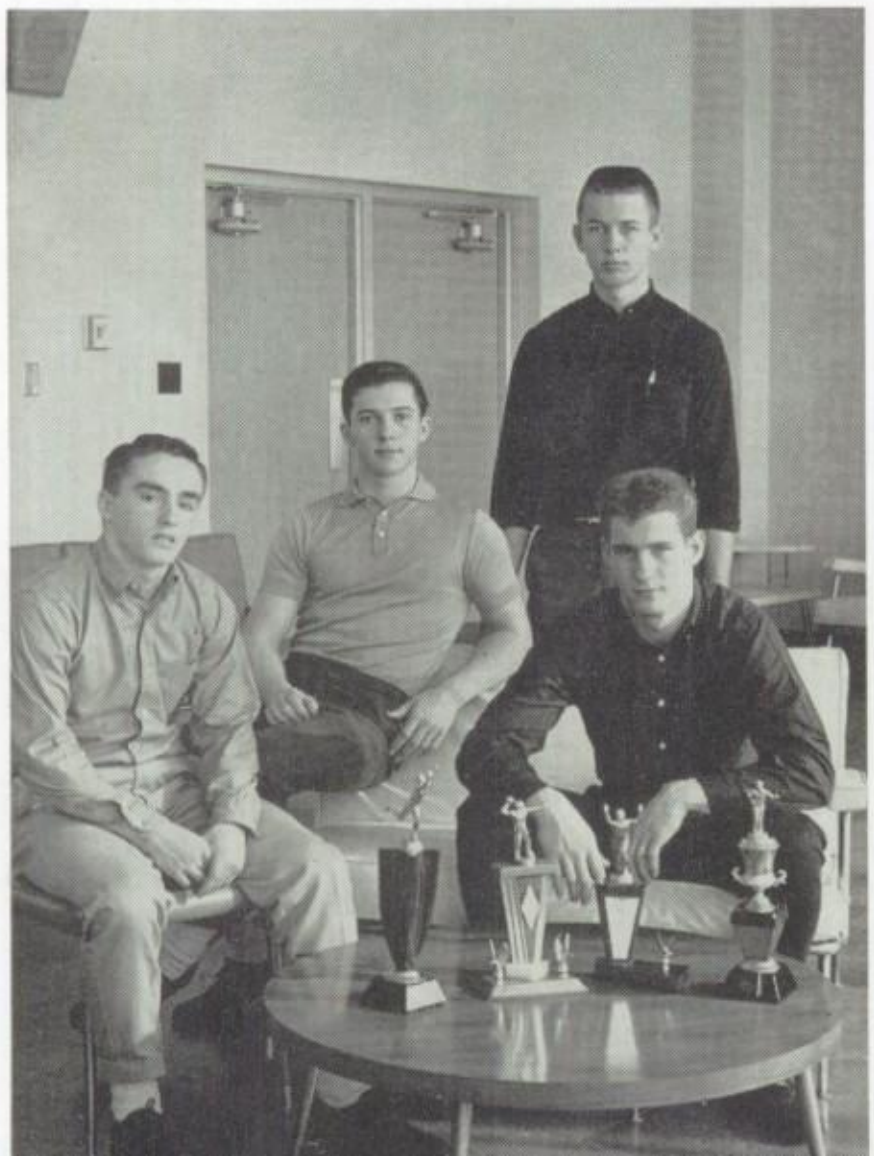
OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCES on the gridiron earned Dick Stark, Dave Taus, Marlin Waller, and Bill Beery the trophies shown before them. Tad Bonsall, who shared the Outstanding Lineman Award with Waller, could not be present.



Seven Quaker gridders were honored for their outstanding performances during the 1962 campaign at the Annual Salem Boosters Club Football Banquet.

Winner of the coveted Knights of Columbus Award was Dick Stark, who maintained the highest scholastic average during his three years on the squad. The Outstanding Lineman Award was shared this year by Marlin Waller and Tad Bonsall, while Dave Taus was honored as the Most Improved Player. Quaker standout Bill Beery received the Most Valuable Player Award presented annually by the Salem News.

Beery, who led the Quaker unit in ground-gaining, passing, and scoring, also attained a first-team berth on the All-County squad, while Marlin Waller and George Johnston earned positions on the second team. Dick Stark and Dave Capel received honorable mention.

In the annual recognition assembly, Coach Morton awarded 20 varsity letters to deserving participants, thus winding up the 1962 season.

JVs post strong records, hold promise

Giving ample notice of their future potential, Coach Bob Martin's reserve unit blocked and tackled their way to a 6-2 record during the 1962 season.

The Quaker Junior Varsity opened the campaign by clipping the Leetonia Bears 32-0, and followed with a 22-8 victory over East Palestine. The Jayvees then journeyed to Minerva, where they dropped their first contest 6-0. For the next four games the squad had smooth sailing, downing Sebring 37-8, West Branch 46-0, Wellsville 52-0, and Boardman 12-0. In their last tilt the Reserves fell to a powerful East Liverpool unit 8-6.

Next year's Varsity promises to be big, speedy, and full of the usual Quaker fighting spirit.

AFTER SNAGGING a ball underneath the Columbus hoop, Marlin Waller looks down court for a fast-breaking teammate, but a determined Tiger has other ideas. At his best under pressure, Marlin ignited several fourth-quarter rallies.

Playing a stiff schedule which included three of the state's top ten teams, Coach John Cabas's varsity roundballers rolled to a 12-6 regular season mark and finished the year at 15-7 after tournament play. A season of thrills was rendered to Quaker fans as many records were set.

The initial tilt on Dec. 8 gave onlookers a shock as the Quakers suffered a stunning 75-49 setback at the hands of the Columbus East Tigers, a team which continued to roll over opponents all over the state. After rebounding to blast Canton Timken 79-65, the locals fell to Massillon 70-62 on the victor's court.

After downing Cleveland John Adams, Akron North, Girard, and Akron East, the Cabasmen journeyed to Warren to tangle with the highly-touted Panthers. A fourth-quarter cold spell at the free-throw line marked the Quakers' downfall as they lost 64-60. Three straight victories followed, however, as the Salem squad romped over Ravenna, Niles McKinley, and Wellsville. After being edged 65-62 by Akron South, the Quakers stormed back

WITH A desperate come-to-papa gesture and a tightrope jig, Bill Beery saves a ball from going out of bounds as teammates Rich Sweitzer and Bob King stand eager to assist.

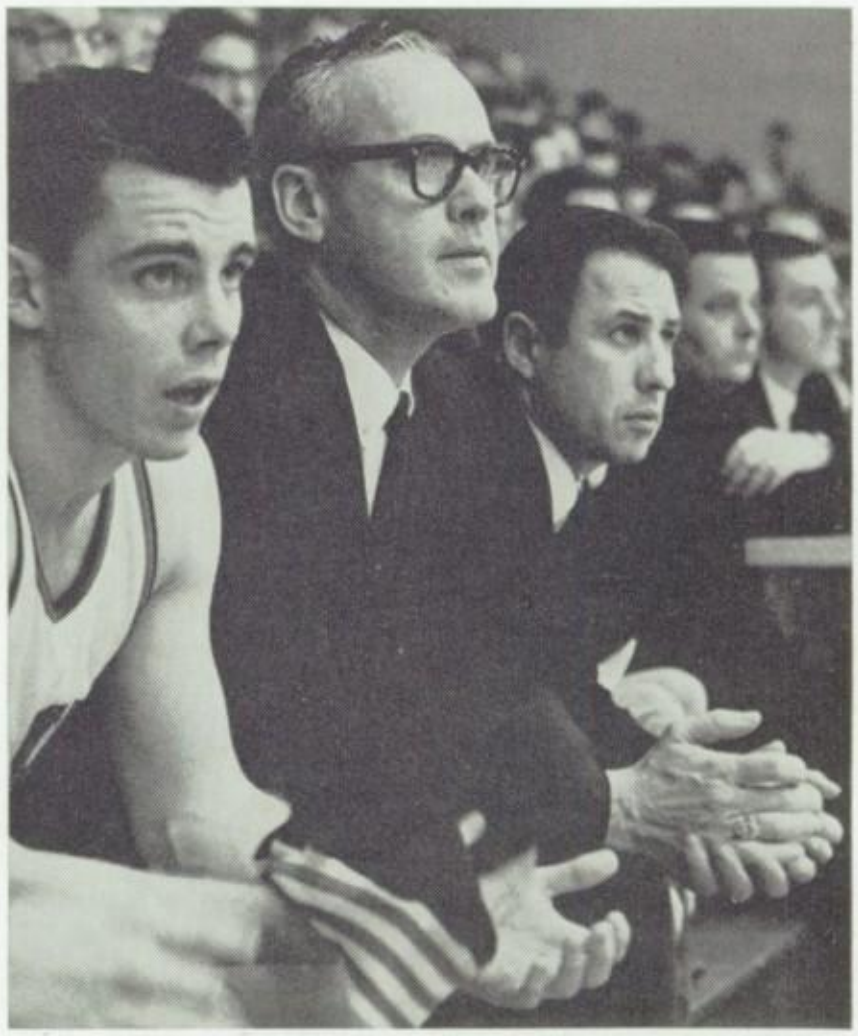
rugged campaign

to pin a 107-71 defeat on Youngstown South, thus avenging twin losses inflicted by the Warriors last year and setting a new single-game scoring record.

Away-from-home jitters plagued the Quakers as they lost their third Big Eight Conference game to rival East Liverpool 58-53. The Quakers then rallied again to post victories over Boardman, Alliance, and Youngstown East before they fell to the powerful Canton McKinley Bulldogs 51-49.

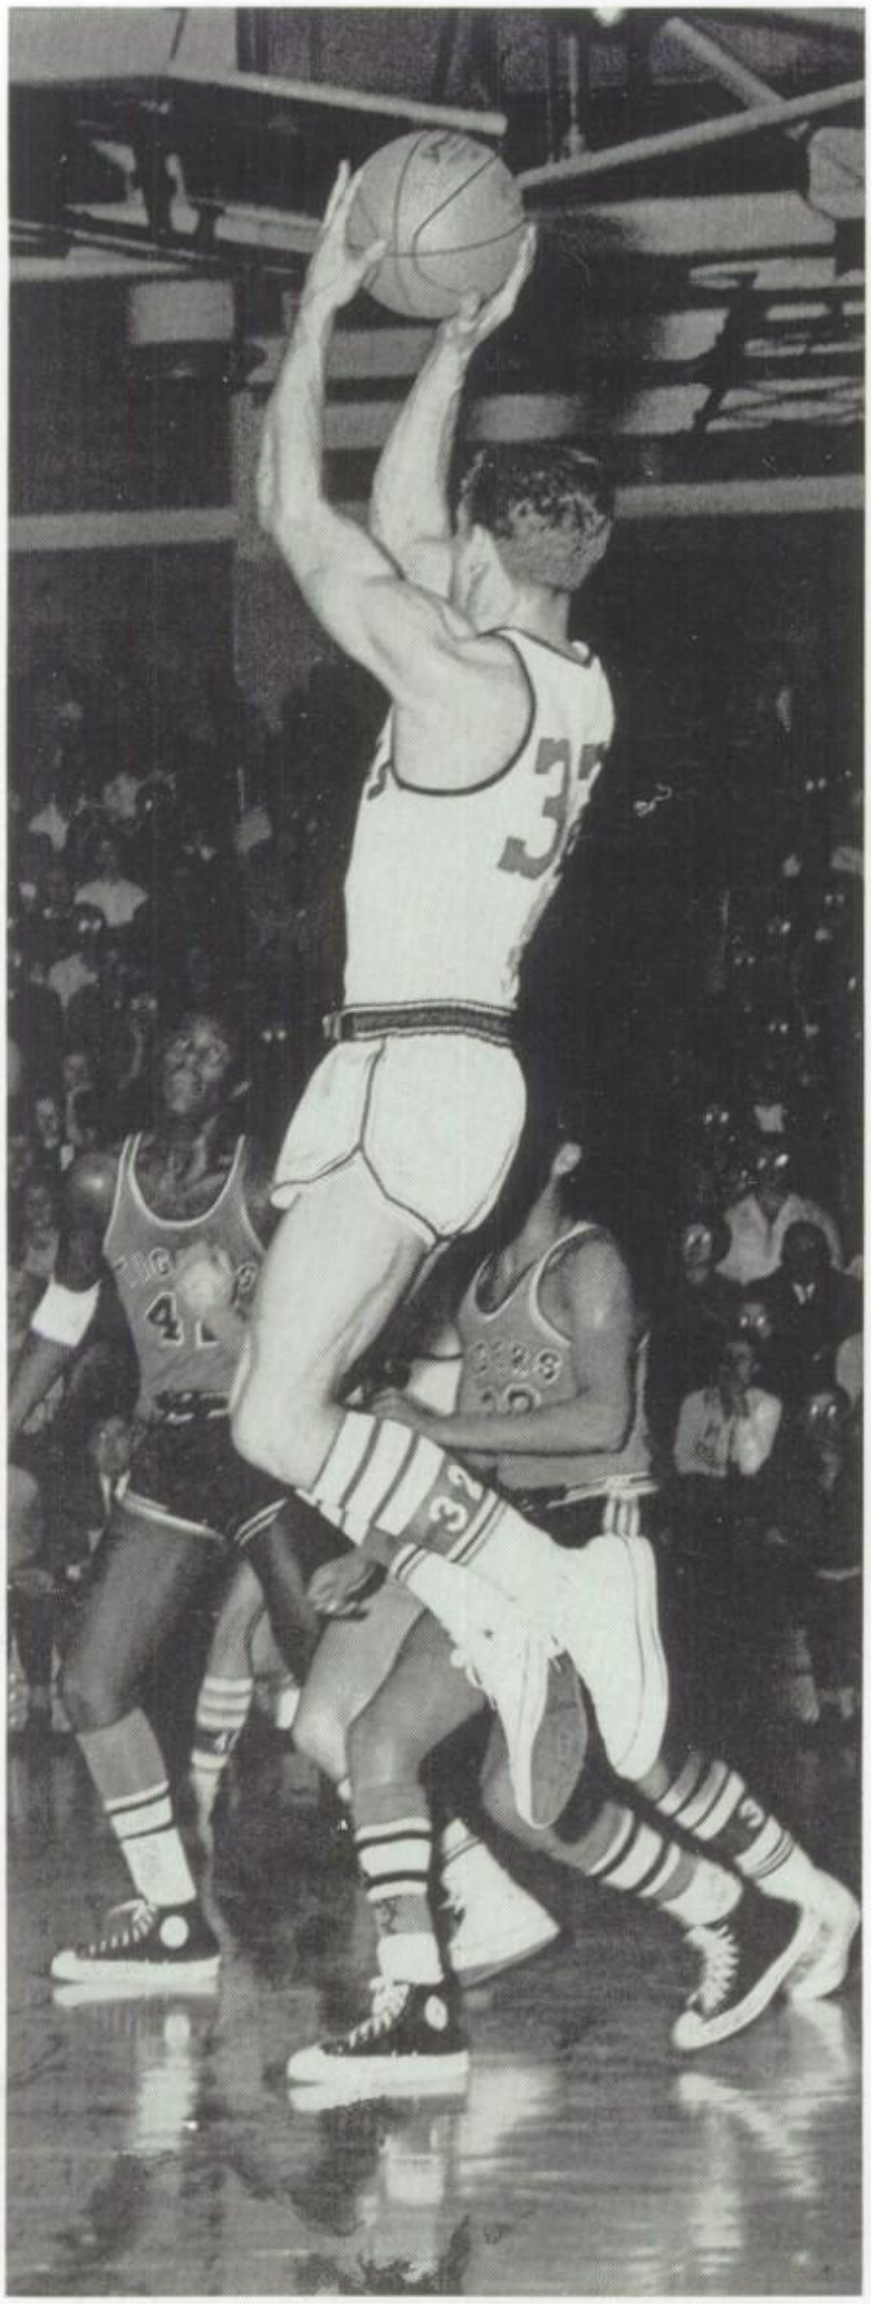
The Quakers set out on the tourney trail with high hopes, rolling over Struthers, Youngstown North, and Niles while capturing their third straight sectional title. But tourney dreams ended when the locals let a nine-point halftime advantage slip through their fingers and succumbed again to Warren Harding 57-54.

An outstanding individual performance was that of captain Bill Beery, who broke three individual scoring records and tied another. And with 15 victories, a few narrow losses, and a tournament heartbreak, the 1963 Quaker team earned its place in our great athletic tradition.



CLASPED HANDS, graying hair, and a crumpled-up jersey reveal the woes of coaches John Cabas and Karl Zellers and sixth man Dave Capel as they watch the Quakers go down to defeat in the season opener against Columbus East.

Quakers' 107-point



DISPLAYING PERFECT FORM, captain Bill Beery soars high into the air to send another two-pointer through the hoop. Bill's mobility under the boards and in the back court enabled him to become Salem Senior High's all-time scoring king.

PAWING FOR the ball in a mid-air tussle with a lanky Tiger, Bob King seems to have lost the battle this time. The Columbus team, ranked as high as third in the state, exemplified the Quakers' strong opposition.

POPPING UP from a pack of Columbus East Tigers, Quaker center Bob "Bo" King stretches out his trusty right arm to pull in a rebound. Bob averaged nearly 17 rebounds per game for the Quakers.

Jayvee roundballers post hard-fought

TENSION MOUNTS as Quakers receive last-minute instructions in the pre-game huddle, while students stacked from floor to ceiling await the opening tip-off of the 1962-63 basketball campaign.

After dropping the first three games of the season, Coach Karl Zellers' reserve basketball team came on strong and captured victories in seven of their last ten contests to compile a 9-8 record.

By constantly shifting his starting line-up in an effort to find a clicking combination, Coach Zellers enabled nine boys to start for the Quakers at one time or another, and all members of the squad saw considerable action.

The Jayvees could manage only two wins in their first five games, but one of these was a devastating 40-16 trouncing of hapless Girard. After dropping contests to Akron East and Warren Harding, the Zellersmen finally jelled and captured five consecutive wins over Ravenna, Niles, Wellsville, Akron South, and Youngstown South.

The victory over Ravenna was highlighted by the sinking of 15 consecutive free throws for a new reserve record.

These same boys will fill the shoes of this year's all-senior varsity. After playing together for one entire year, they may be hard to beat. The Jayvees also have a bright outlook in 1964 with the arrival of a strong freshman team.

"LOOK MA! ONE FINGER!" or so it seems as Pete Nollier tries to gain possession of the ball amid the flailing arms of an Ursuline opponent. A slow-starting team, the Zellersmen showed continual improvement as they gained experience.

Reserve, varsity pepsters combine talents

While assisting the varsity at pep assemblies and bonfires, the reserve cheerleaders added some sparkle of their own to the jayvee basketball games. They also combined their profits from the basketball concession stand with the varsity's to form a fund for the purchase of new uniforms.

Following preliminary eliminations last spring, the six members of the squad were chosen by popular vote of the student body after a try-out assembly.

COPING WITH first-game jitters, reserve pepsters watch their boys in action. The '63 JV squad was the first to assist their varsity counterparts at the post-season tourney.

to produce spirit, sparkle for sports events

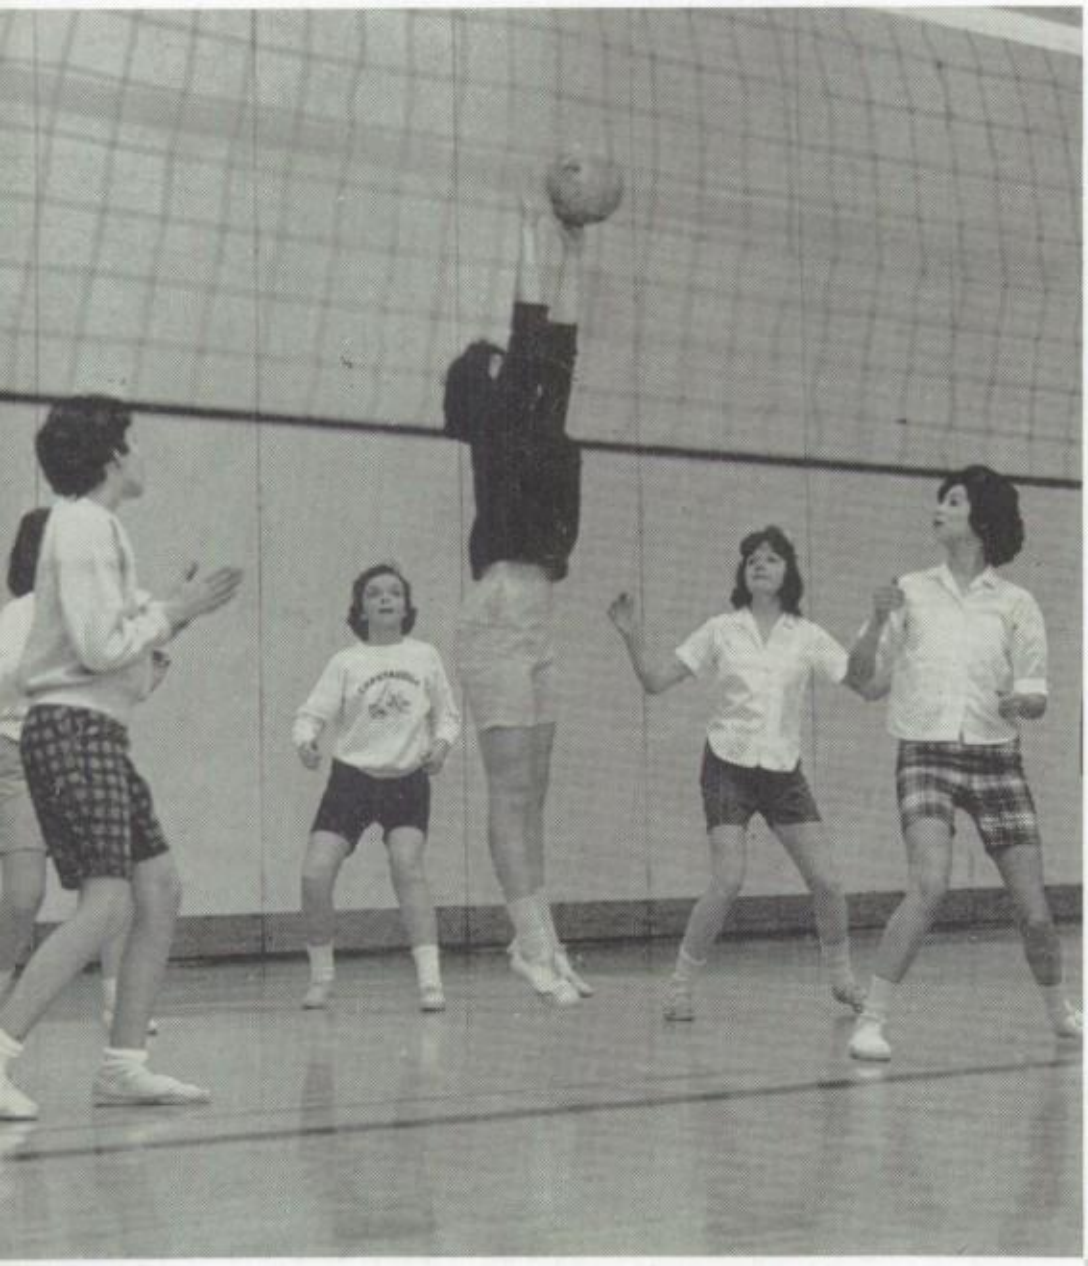
Captain Diane

With familiar side line chants and snappy time-out routines, six bright-eyed varsity cheerleaders roused school spirit at SHS's sporting events. Proving that cheerleading is not all glamour, the pepsters held vigorous morning practice sessions at Reilly Field throughout the summer.

Two members of the varsity squad, Diane Mundy and Janet Burns, attended the All-American cheerleading camp in Hartland, Mich., and returned to Quakertown with new ideas.

"HEY ALL YOU QUAKERS!" Pert and pretty, SHS's varsity cheerleaders lead a side line chant. Winning or losing, Quaker spirit is one thing SHSers never seem to lack.

SHSers participate in nationwide youth



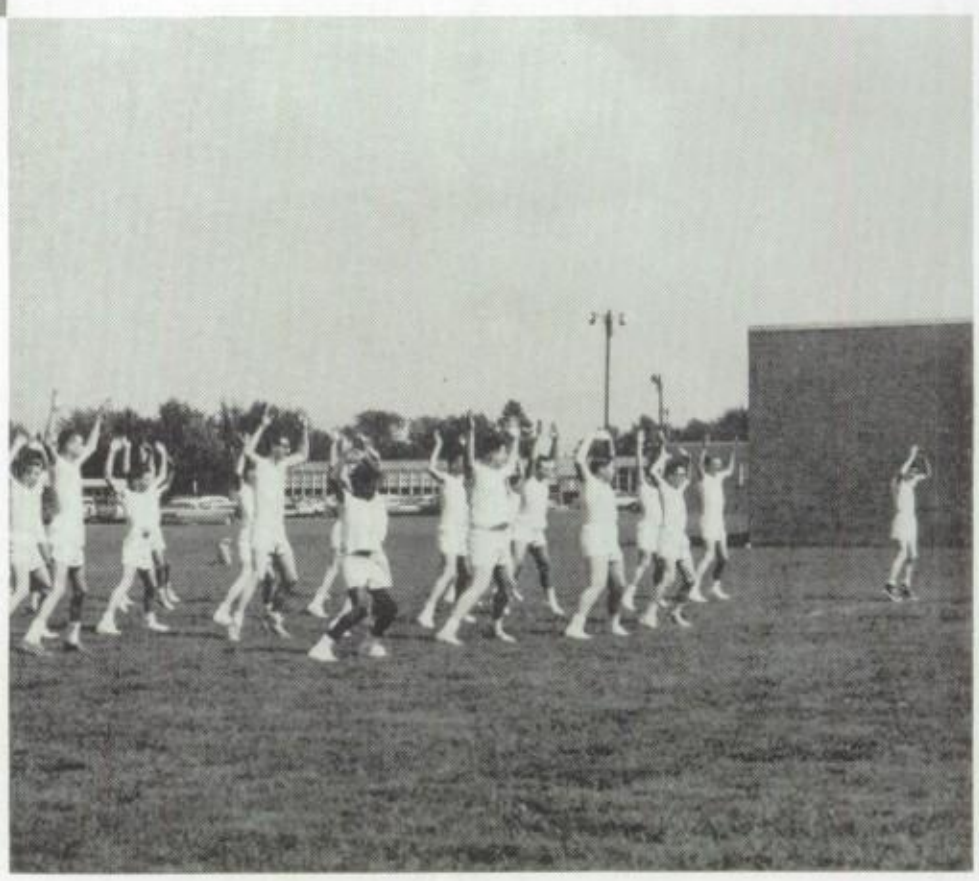
UP SHE GOES in an effort to bang the ball over the net and catch her gym class opponents off guard. Girls were also active in intramural competition this year with teams competing in volleyball and badminton.

Under the direction of Miss Betty McKenna and Mr. Robert Miller, SHSers underwent a twice-weekly physical education program of conditioning calisthenics and athletic activities. The agenda included speedball, basketball, volleyball, golf, and baseball for the girls, while boys participated in flag football, wrestling, tumbling, soccer, basketball, and volleyball.

In response to the intensified country-wide emphasis on youth fitness, SHS's intramural program has continued to expand each year. Teams were formed so that boys could vie for honors in flag football, basketball, and volleyball with miniature trophies being awarded to the members of the winning squads.

Athletes who wished to test their talents in individual competition were challenged by handball, ping-pong, tennis, and golf. Ping-pong and tennis, the new additions to the 1963 intramural program, were made possible through the purchasing of four new ping-pong tables and the resurfacing of the public courts at Centennial Park.

Over-all, Salem's highly successful intramural program encompassed seven fall, winter, and spring sports and engaged 200 healthy participants.



WHETHER IT'S jumping jacks or fifty push-ups, fresh air and sunshine give added vitality to boys' gym classes during fall and spring days. These calisthenics will soon be followed by baseball, flag football, or soccer.

Excellence, recognition play important part in student life

Our turbulent teenage years are marked by many complexities. To combat the frustrations of our adolescence, we are always on the go. Our summer days are crowded with strolling the links, piling up the miles between Skip's and the Frostop, earning money for gas, and rambling to far-away places. Then, pain and agony, it's September and school begins. We pick up our schedules, battle the crowds in the corridors, fight to the head of the cafeteria line, bolt down our food, and suffer through eighth-period drag. Placing our classmates on pedestals, we honor them as Football Queen, Basketball Sweetheart, and Quaker King and Queen. We keep up with the latest fads by sporting kilts and knee socks, crewneck sweaters, dirty sneakers, and tab collars. The more ambitious of us compete for awards and have fun doing it. We are teenagers, easy to like, hard to understand,
Quakers of SHS.

To the top ten scholars from the senior class go gold tassles to adorn their gowns during commencement excercises.

The Marie Burns Awards are given each year to seniors and sophomores with outstanding vocal talent. Juniors compete in the instrumental division. Students must audition in the spring before a special committee of judges from the Senior Music Study Club. The awards are presented to two from each class.

The Brooks Awards for creative writing go to those SHSers whose compositions reflect originality and sustained excellence in writing style. English teachers choose the winners after studying student material which has been gathered during the course of the year.

Both the music and literary awards are given in the form of cash prizes financed by means of trust funds established by former Salem citizens.

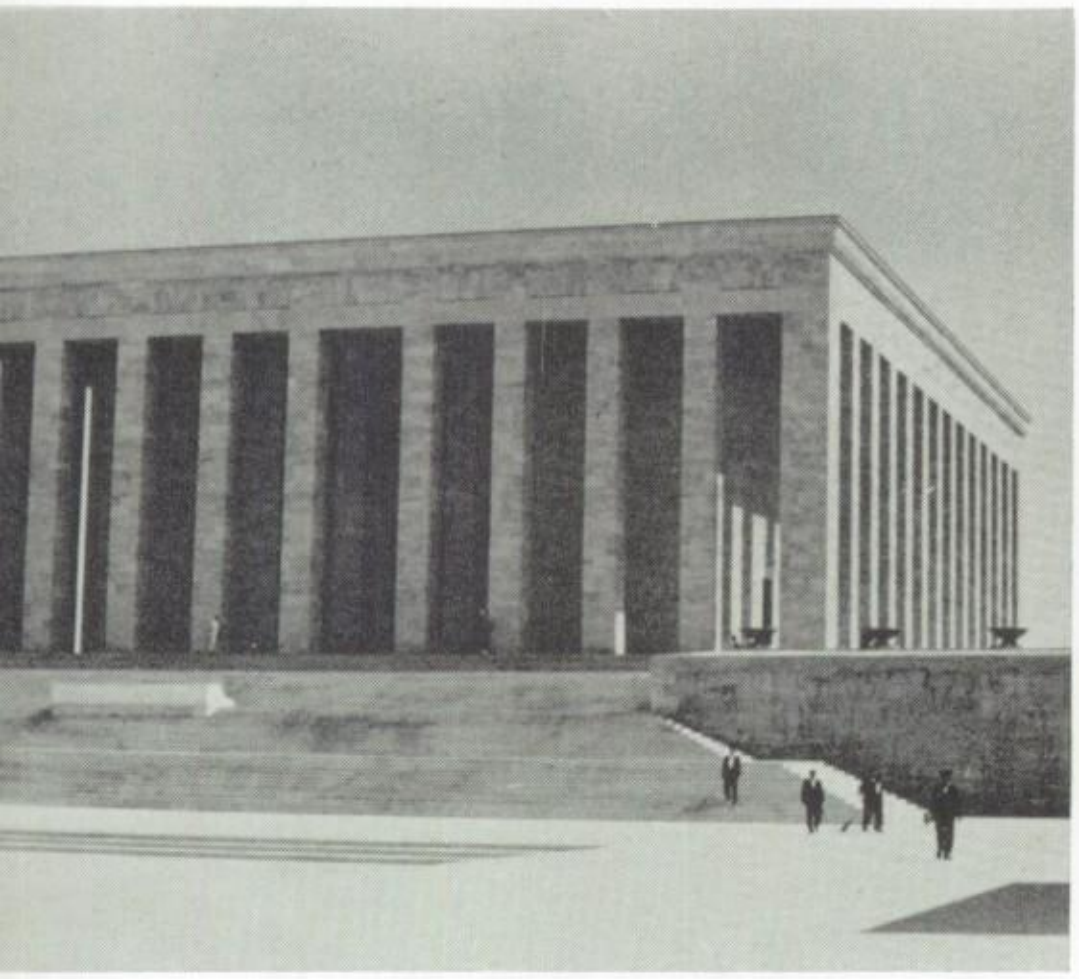
Az, Rick brave icy blasts, exotic food,



ON THE HIGHEST hill in Ankara stands the Ataturk Mausoleum, which Rick found to be the most impressive sight in the city. Erected by the Turkish government, it epitomizes the people's feeling toward Ataturk, founder of modern Turkey.

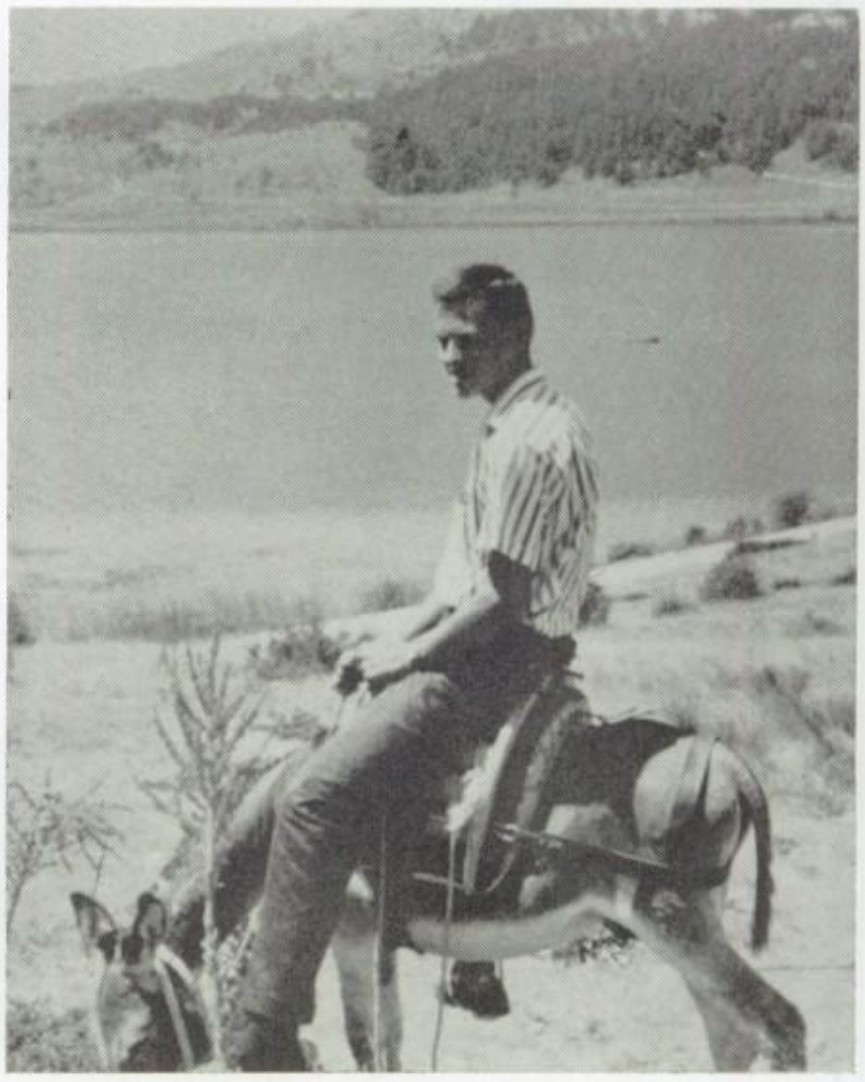
THE AWESOME Mosque of Sultan Ahmet, the most famous landmark in Turkey, rises above the streets of Istanbul. Also called the Blue Mosque, it is the only building in the world with six majestic minarets reaching toward the sky.

During the summer of 1962 the Salem exchange-student program reached the second phase of its two-fold goal. For the first time in the school's history, SHS was represented by a student delegate to a foreign country. Richard Shoop, recipient of an American Field Service international scholarship, resided for seven weeks in Istanbul, Turkey.

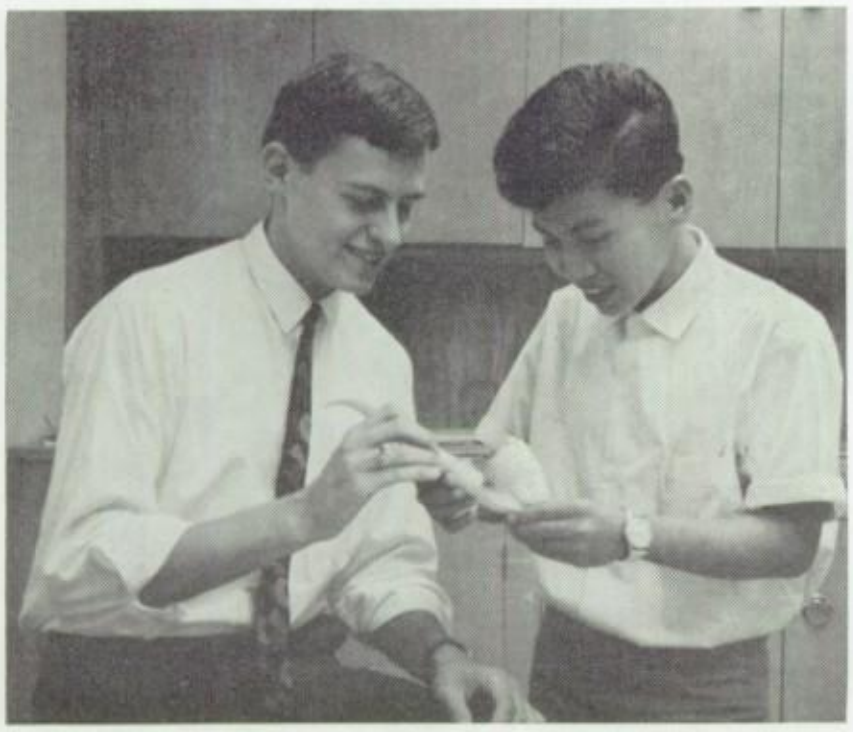
Throughout what he calls "the greatest summer of my life," Rick shared the home of a Turkish family, tasting exotic foods, observing foreign sights, and striving to master the alien tongue.

In the last week of his stay, Rick journeyed to Ankara, the capital city of Turkey. There he met the president and several national dignitaries. Press conferences, a never - ending line of newspaper photographers, and a series of panel discussions consumed every second of Rick's last few days.

ALTHOUGH NEXT TIME he'll ask for a bigger size, Rick seems to be at home astride this donkey by the shores of Lake Abant. The occasion was a picnic attended by the 80-some American Field Service students living in Turkey.



foster international good will via AFS



WHENEVER TWO AFSers confab about their experiences, the conversation is bound to be intriguing. Here Rick Shoop, SHS's own ambassador to Turkey, shows Azhar a Turkish pipe, one of his many souvenirs from the land of mosques.

A dynamic grin followed by a cheerful "oh boy!" soon became associated school-wide with SHS's third exchange student, Azhar Djaloeis of Indonesia.

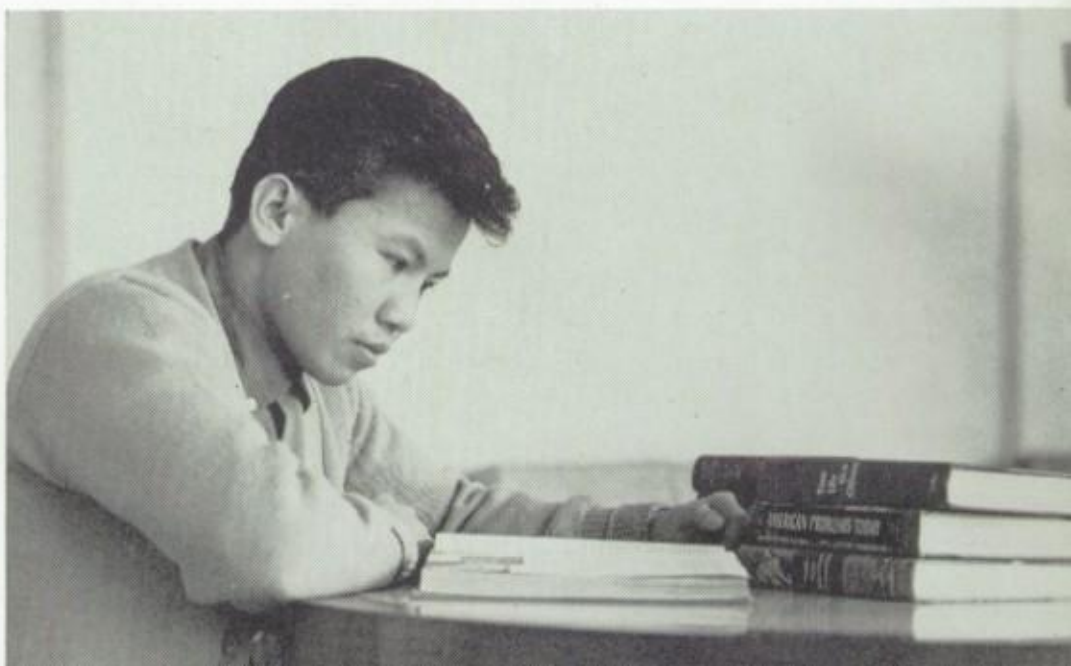
The first male AFS student to study in Salem, Az discovered many oddities in the American mode of living. Bland food, icy weather, and slang expressions emerged before him as pesky but soon-surmounted differences of a foreign land.

An ardent Quaker fan, he hollered his teammates on to victory. But Az didn't limit himself to merely observing teenage frolics. After a little practice he became a demon on the ice, and it was not long before he was out-twisting his American friends on the dance floor.

When not participating in school affairs, his time was spent making a constant round of speeches about his home life on the isle of Sumatra.

His vitality and charm will always remain as unforgettable complements to a great year in SHS.

ALTHOUGH not a cowboy at heart, amiable Az is game to try anything his friends put h'm up to, even the back of a pinto pony. He usually gets even at the ping-pong table.



HITTING THE BOOKS as he knows he must, Azhar bones up on the American government. Carrying physics, German, English, U.S. History, and P.O.D., Az had quite a work load.

An investment in youth is an investment in the future

The merchants of Salem take an active interest in our school. With the cooperation of Salem businessmen, the administration has instigated a successful distributive education program which provides supervised work experience for selected seniors who are considering a business career. Several of the larger industries provide scholarships for outstanding math and science majors, for these industrialists realize that an investment in education is an investment in the future. Professional men support our sports loudly and enthusiastically and give the go-ahead signal for students to decorate their store windows before the big games. Thus by advertising in the QUAKER, these people benefit not only themselves, but also the students of Salem. They have helped to make this yearbook possible. We show our appreciation by our patronage.

McCarthy COST CUTTING DRILLS BLAST HOLE DRILLS

TRUCK-MOUNTED HORIZONTAL

● Satisfied customer reports, "I drill so many more feet per minute with my McCarthy than I did with my old jet rig that I quickly recovered the low initial purchase cost."

VERTICAL DRILL

● "Amazing savings," says Owner-Contractor J. F. Nichols. He drilled six-foot-deep blast holes in 40 seconds each as against 30 minutes each with wagon drills, claims savings of $7500 per month. "Greatest purchase I ever made," says Nichols.

SELF-PROPELLED HORIZONTAL

● A New Castle, Pa., operator reports boring "840,' various depth holes through shale and sandstone, in one working day." Bores 6" and 8" diameter hol s at rate of 6' per minute maxim .m.

Heavy Rugged Powerful

COAL RECOVERY DRILL

● Robert B. Cleghorn, Jr., Hodgeville, West Virginia, reports his hydraulical, self-moving 42" McCarthy Coal Recovery Drill mines "up to 500 tons of clean, low-cost quality coal per day." Cleghorn has a three-man crew—operates in pits as narrow as 34 feet. Operator has total vision, including the highwall. Model 12 handles 24' augers from 16" to 48" in diameter.

● Other McCarthy Coal Recovery Drills handle augers 4', 6' and 12' in length.

Good Lucks to a sweet girl in the future. Be careful with the boys.

Be Good!

John England

Diane,

Just think, no more school, no more tests, no more worry. But now we'll go on to college with harder studys, harder Tests and more worry.

See ya in the hospital real soon!

Ann Scheets

-1963-

Diane, Best of luck to one of the sweetest and cutest seniors I know. Take it easy on the boys.

Love ya!

Rick Hippely

Dear ~~Scabby~~ Scubby -

I'd better stick to calling you Joanne, and I can't even spell that right. It doesn't really matter though. Whatever you plan on doing in the future will be quite easy for you if you maintain that personality of yours. At the risk of sounding trite, I'd like to wish you good luck in all you undertake.

Rick Sloop

Scub -

It doesn't seem possible that we will be graduating - we've gone to school together for 13 yrs. and have had lots of fun together! Good luck all year do - Have fun at B.U. next year. Stay as cute and sweet as you are!!

Kay

Diane, Finally! Graduation. Yeah. No more homework, no more classes, no more tests, no more Miss Lyon. No more Miss Cavanaugh. No more Miss Sullivan. No more Miss Gerrard. No more Miss Walter. Summer, here we come. Have a good time at college. Best of luck. Love, Sandy

Dear Scubby,

Well did it just about kill you to have to call me Joanne, I hope you had a wonderful summer. Thanks so much for the help you gave me in Math. I'm sorry I was such a pain. Best of luck at B.U. Hope you have a great year.

Love, Sandy

Diane,
We have finally made it!
We had a lot of fun and plenty of conversations while we were in 142 Study Hall. Best of luck in college and I know you can go far if you strive for it.
Always,
Frances Pazaspin

Diane,
Best of Luck Always to a really sweet Senior Classmate. Hope you have had as much fun as I have. It sure went as fast as it came. Only 3 more days. Keep your winning smile and personality always and you won't need any luck in the future.
Have fun but be good. May
God Bless You.

In appreciation

Being a QUAKER editor has meant fun, frustration and frazzled nerves. It would be impossible to produce a yearbook without the help and guidance of many people. A large measure of thanks goes to Mr. Walter Troup and Mr. George Engle of the Troup and Pluto Company, Mr. Edwin Olson of the Youngstown Arc Engraving Company, Mr. Ed Blackburn of the Budget Press, and Mr. Kenneth Schoen of the S. K. Smith Company for their professional help. I wish to thank Mr. Ludwig, business adviser Mr. Arthur Furey, the faculty, and school personnel for their cooperation. A special tip of the hat goes to Jack Sweet for the cover design and division page drawings. I am grateful to my assistants and staff for their loyalty and dedication. The business staff deserves a vote of thanks for selling the ads which financed this book. To Mrs. Loop, who gave up two days a week during the summer to help my assistants with yearbook layouts, I give a special thanks. Most of all, I wish to thank Miss Cobourn for her calm guidance throughout the year. I hope that this book upholds the QUAKER'S tradition of excellence.

Diane,
So we're graduating today. Well graduation is finally here. Don't forget all those wild classes, English, + lunch.
Stay sweet. I'm glad that I've gotten to know you better.
Don't forget your Senior year. Have fun in school.

Love ya,
Marsha

P.S. Thanks for teaching me those songs that night
by the way home
from the Sport!

Diane,

Best of Luck to a darling natural blonde. Oh how I envie you! We sure have had the good times during are senior year at SHS. I'm so glad you moved to our lunch table cause I've gotten to know & like you so much. Never forget all the private jokes at lunch time. We sure are little stinkers but what the heck. I want to wish you the Best of Luck at O.U. next year. I just know you'll have a great time. Don't forget I'll be down to see you on St. Pats Day. Till then - Take Care and Never forget our great Class of '63.

Peg Messner

Dear Diane,

Do you remember the last girls party I gave, I don't really remember the whole thing (like senior party) but I had fun, I'll always remember the other things (like senior party) and all the fun we had in Ed. 3 and I'll always remember you don't you? I sure can remember the O.C. Rampage. Sure hope you have a great time at O.U. next year. I'll be down to see you on St. Pats Day.

Love,
Peg

Diane,
It seems funny saying good-bye but I don't know if you know it or not
I think you're pretty swell.
I know I've enjoyed our friendship over the past few years and I'm glad we remained friends. Remember our good times, especially Latin class. Keep smiling and always remember what I told you.
Best of luck
Sincerely
Diane

Diane,
Best of luck to a real swell
kid. I really have known you only a few months but I've enjoyed your company a lot so I'm glad we became friends.
Bill

Diane,
a really swell kid
whose been loads of fun.
Remember that crazy Health
Class and 7th period.
Best of Luck always in Golf and everything.
